PREPARE NOTE ANSWERING BRITAIN'S

Reply Will Give Position of U. S. on Objection to German Debt Plan

BULLETIN

LONDON, Dec. 10.—The British-American war debt controversy flared up again today in the House of Commons. Sir John Simon bitterly denounced the war debt situation. He said:

"The United States was unwilling to lend the money to the allies without a British guarantee, but now it is collecting from France without consulting Great Britain."

He declared the situation was becoming intolerable and asked what Chancellor Churchill proposed to do about it.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10.—Secretary of State Hughes will dispatch a note to Great Britain in a few days in which the British government will be informed that the United States regards as entirely untenable the British position that America should not share on a pro-rata basis with other nations in the money that Germany pays through the Dawes plan to meet her reparations.

The note from Mr. Hughes will be in reply to the one received from the British foreign office last night and which is described as a "firm objection" to the United States getting anything at all out of the Dawes plans proceeds to apply on what Germany owes this country.

It is likely that the American will meet firmness with firmness.

Flat Rejection

For the time being the state department declined today to make public the British note. But from authoritative sources, it was learned that the tenor of the American reply will be a flat rejection of the British position, and a firm insistence upon America's right to liquidate her claims against Germany through the operations of the Dawes plan, just as every nation is now doing.

Other nations a party to the reparations controversy, France, Belgium and Italy, have recognized the justice and equity of the American position, and Great Britain stands alone in opposition. This fact has led to a wealth of speculation as to what are the real motives behind the British position.

Claims in Dispute

The American claims against Germany that are in dispute are the claims that are now being adjudicated by the German-American mixed claims commission. They probably will aggregate $300,000,000. Compared with the enormous amounts Germany is paying, this sum is comparatively insignificant and if spread over a long period of years, as this

Britain's Note Not Protest, Is Now Declared

LONDON, Dec. 10.—Explanation was made by the foreign office this afternoon of circumstances which prompted Great Britain's note to Washington on the subject of war debts.

The note, the foreign office said, was a reply to a note received from Washington regarding the situation. In replying, the British government maintained that the United States was not entitled to benefits under the Versailles treaty and further, Great Britain could not admit that the United States had legal grounds for a claim under the Dawes plan.

The British government, in its note, then asked the United States for further information of the American viewpoint.

The foreign office made it emphatic that Great Britain did not intend the note as a protest. It merely embraced the British viewpoint, it was stated. It is hoped, the foreign office said, satisfactorily to thresh out the whole problem at the Paris conference in January.

Change Is Urged

"Despite the measures taken, the present high temperature is analogous to last year's temperature and results from an irritation of the bronchial glands. This, in turn, was brought on by the climatic change which Trotzky made, it being dry in the Caucasus and damp in Moscow.

"We think that Trotzky should hasten his departure to a health resort where he will be in a warmer climate."

FACTORIES IN CALIFORNIA ARE URGED

Need Industrial Population, Claim of Fruit Growers, Farmers In Meeting

SACRAMENTO, Dec. 10.—"What we need in California is a greater industrial population to which we can feed our products."

With this excerpt from the annual address of G. H. Hecke, director of state department of agriculture, standing out as the keynote of the meeting, more than 1,000 farmers, representing virtually every branch of agriculture in California, today assembled in the assembly chamber of the state capitol for the fifty-seventh Fruit Growers' and Farmers' convention. The convention will continue throughout today and tomorrow.

Urging the need of greater industrial expansion to provide for the future development of agriculture, Hecke declared that "California can easily stand a vast increase in its number of inhabitants." Until new industries are brought to the state, however, there is "no crying need for an additional agricultural and rural population," he added.

Recommendations embodied in Hecke's report were:

1—Establishment by constitutional amendment of agricultural council or board of regents to govern state department of agriculture and remove the department from political influence.

He followed the accusation by striking the chief deputy. Manchester struck back, and the two men fought furiously before they were separated. Bowden then fell to the floor, dead.

A physician who was called failed to revive him.

O. B. Manchester is well known throughout Glendale and the surrounding territory, particularly in view of his recent campaign for the office of supervisor of the fifth supervisorial district, in which Supervisor Henry W. Wright, incumbent, sought and gained re-election on August 26.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10.—Spurred by the demand of Secretary Wilbur for a stronger navy, administration leaders in the Senate today announced a drive for final enactment of the $111,000,000 navy bill.

An effort to place this fund at the disposal of Secretary Wilbur will be made tomorrow, according to an announcement today by Senator Hale, Republican, Maine, chairman of the Senate naval affairs committee.

The $111,000,000 appropriation bill, he added, would virtually place the American navy on an equal footing with Great Britain, so far as the limitation of the arms conference are concerned.

New legislation, he said, will be required for the building of fast submarines, airplane carriers and for the creation of a gigantic air navy to match the British in those armaments not limited by the treaty.

Measure Tied Up

The "new navy" bill, already passed by the House and the Senate, was tied up last spring when Senator King, Democrat of Utah, moved in the Senate to reconsider its enactment. This motion, still pending, has prevented the bill becoming law.

Of the total appropriation $18,300,000 would be spent on converting battleships, $88,800,000 in building the new cruisers, and $4,200,000 on the gunboats.

COMELY THEME IN PLAYERS' COMEDY

'Only 38' Opens Tonight At Playhouse; Vets To Benefit

Suppose you were 19, a college girl, and woke up all at once to find that the little woman whom you had always considered merely as mother, was, in fact, an attractive little person, and capable of attracting more attention from your friends than you were yourself. What would you do about it?

That is one of the genuinely funny situations in A. E. Thomas' comedy "Only 38," which is the attraction at the club playhouse beginning tonight with Gertrude Kellar in the role of the mother and Olaf Hytten in the character of the college professor who falls in love with her.

In New York, where "Only 38" ran for several months, the critics acclaimed it a theatrical gem, and the public thronged the Cort theatre to see it. Mrs. Florence Dobinson, in securing it from the Century Play Co., of New York, so soon after its release for stock, has been compelled to pay the high royalty that goes with all New York hits, but she considers that she owes the best to her patrons and is sure they will vote "Only 38" beyond any question one of the best.

Included in the exceptional cast of "Only 38" is Gertrude Kellar, Olaf Hytten, Mary Isabelle Alpaugh, William H. Stephens, Thyra Ruhland, Gertrude Rothe, Richard Ehlers and George C. Pearce. Among some of the Glendalians appearing in the college scene are Helen Anderson, Winifred Anderson, Edwards Rothe, Harry Glazier, Maurice Widdows, and Harold Treffry.

Tonight and tomorrow night's performances will go to aid in Christmas cheer for the sick and disabled soldiers of the American Legion.

Runs Business From Cell

HERBERT H. BIGELOW, millionaire novelties manufacturer of St. Paul, now serving a sentence of two years on the charge of making a false income tax return, handles his business from his quarters in the federal prison at Leavenworth, Kan.

BIGELOW IS ASSISTANT ELECTRICIAN FOR THE PENITENTIARY
HERBERT H. BIGELOW
HIS HOURS WHEN NOT EMPLOYED ARE DEVOTED MOSTLY TO ANSWERING HIS HUGE CORRESPONDENCE.

LEAVENWORTH, Kan., Dec. 10.—Herbert H. Bigelow, millionaire, one of the largest manufacturers of calendars, placards and other printed matter in the United States, is now directing his huge business from a cell in a federal penitentiary here.

Bigelow is one of the 188 trusty prisoners confined at the penitentiary. He was received last August to serve a sentence of two years on conviction of having made a false return in his income tax report. Upon his reception at the prison he was assigned to the electrical shop and within a short time was made an outside trusty. No privileges not accorded other trusty prisoners are given Bigelow.

Somewhere back in the years, Bigelow, prison officials believe, must have made a study of electricity. They do not believe that in the short months he has been employed as the assistant electrician he could have gained the knowledge of his work which he possesses. He is rated as a good electrician and apparently is deeply interested in the work.

One day is very much like another with the millionaire assistant prison electrician. Beyond the restrictions which the prison throws about him, Bigelow might easily imagine himself employed by any first-class electrical shop in St. Paul.

Many persons come to see him, and his mail is, perhaps, the heaviest at the prison. Twice each week he receives visits from heads of various departments of his vast enterprise, and with these he crowds hours into the time allotted in which to talk over and give directions for the conduct of his business affairs. His hours when not employed are devoted mostly to answering his huge correspondence, relative to his business affairs.

So far his record in the prison has been spotless. He has violated no rule. He is accepting his punishment in a philosophical way and makes no complaint. In the eye of prison officials he is the type of ideal prisoner.

The human side of the prison also holds deep and fascinating interest for the St. Paul manufacturer. For years the responsible head of a large body of men in his employ, he has studied conditions at the prison and used his position as an employer of labor to help his fellow prisoners.

And this coming Christmas there will be no empty stockings in the prison. Bigelow will see to that.

HARDWARE STORE HAS XMAS RUSH

East Broadway Shop Is Scene of Holiday Buyers' General Objective

Christmas is apparent in every department of the Glendale Hardware Co. store, 601 East Broadway, and big stock, variety and an increased salesforce makes this a popular shopping center.

He said that he is out of the high rent district which enables him to offer special inducements in many lines.

A complete household appliance department is maintained under the management of H. J. Cox, the Maytag Washer being specially featured. Mr. Cox is well known in Southern California as a household appliance expert. For some time he managed a shop in Pomona, previous to that being in Texas, and is credited with having built up a large washing machine business for the Texas Light & Power Co. FROM EAGLE ROCK

EAGLE ROCK, Dec. 10.—No immediate relief is in prospect for the condition along Longdale, Ellenwood and Glassell avenues, where the open storm ditch runs. It has been stated that work would probably be started by July, 1925, to correct this situation, which is regarded as a health menace, but Oliver Phillips of 4455 Ellenwood avenue has received the following letter from Fred C. Wheeler, chairman of the Public Works committee, which tends to discourage even this faint hope for relief;

"I am informed by Mr. Tuttle's department that the plans for the storm drain in question have been completed as far as York boulevard, from thereon it is another job.

"Mr. Schults, the Chief of the Street Design department, has just informed me that they are now working on the plans for Glassell avenue.

"We recently acquired two strips of 13½ feet each from the street car company. This necessitated the complete re-designing of this street as it will now make a 40-foot street on each side of the track. Mr. Schults says it will be about two months before the plans are finished, then will come the Ordinance of Intention, time for protest, advertising, posting, final ordinance, then advertising and letting of contract. It will be safe to say that work on this job will not begin in less than six months' time.

"I have not been able to see Mr. Tuttle today regarding the condition of the ditch, but I believe it is safe to say that no material betterment can be made until a proper outlet is secured at the other end, however, I will take the matter up with him personally at the very first opportunity."

Tomorrow night at the Women's Twentieth Century club the Community Players will present "A Masque of Christmas" by Constance D'Arcy Mackay, directed by Elgie Lowry Fischer. The curtain will rise at 8 o'clock.

Other features will include carol singing by the boys. The Boys' Glee club, led by Miss Lulu Snyder, will sing Christmas carols.

Stamp Collectors Are Warned of Fake Issue

RIGA, Dec. 10.—George H. Jaeger, dean of the Baltic stamp collectors, warns stamp collectors of the world, and especially those living in America and England, to beware of the Russian rare stamp issues.

He states that the Bolshevik government has formed a stamp monopoly which will seek to provide collectors with endless issues of "rare and limited issues of Bolshevik stamps."

Jaeger reports that the stamp monopoly considers the United States and England the best market for these issues and that shortly offices will be opened in London, New York and Paris.

It is anticipated that the Bolsheviks will derive a huge revenue from this monopoly swindle. Eight new issues are now being prepared.

C. C. Directors Vote to Take In All Lines In City; Will Make Talks

Further action in the "Try Glendale First" campaign being conducted by the Glendale Chamber of Commerce was taken by the board of directors last night and the scope of the drive widened to take in all lines in the city, including the retention of Glendale contractors in construction work and the employment of Glendale laborers and other workers by contractors and those needing the services of outside persons.

Directors Fox, MacBain, Clark, Kelty, Watson and Lauderdale were appointed on a committee to take the campaign in hand. At the same time, the suggestion made by L. L. Byers, 810 South Glendale avenue, through the columns of The Glendale Evening News last night, urging that the employment of home labor be included, was read by Secretary Wood.

Upon motion of Director Fox, seconded by Director Karr, it was unanimously voted to make an addition to the original resolution which was published several days ago, urging Glendalians to trade at home. The revised resolution will urge "Glendale for Glendale in everything."

Five Days Left To Pay Income Tax for 1923

Income taxpayers were warned today by Collector of Internal Revenue Rex B. Goodcell that they have only five more days in which to meet the fourth and final payment of taxes on 1923 income, the dead line being December 15.

Many inquiries are being made as to whether the 25 per cent reduction allowed on 1923 income has been deducted in arriving at the balance due as shown on bills mailed to taxpayers. Collector Goodcell explained that the amount due as set out in these bills is the net balance the taxpayer owes, the 25 per cent refund having been deducted.

Taxpayers who have not received bills were cautioned that they should communicate with the Internal Revenue office, as failure to receive a bill does not relieve the taxpayer of liability. All bills were mailed to the address of taxpayers as given in their returns. Several thousand have moved and failed to leave forwarding addresses. Under the Revenue Act penalties must be imposed in all cases where payments are not made by December 15, whether or not bills were received.

ASKS MERCHANTS KEEP CARS HOME

Request Made by C. C. to Give Shoppers More Parking Room

Glendale merchants, professional men and all those with downtown stores or offices will be prevailed upon to cease the practice of parking their automobiles on main business thoroughfares during business hours by the Glendale Chamber of Commerce. A special committee to draft a resolution seeking the co-operation of all merchants and professional men in this regard has been appointed consisting of Arthur Campbell, C. W. Ingledue and Dan Kelty.

This committee will also confer with City Manager Virgil B. Stone in regard to enforcement of the one-hour parking ordinance. The committee will urge that in the cases of shoppers and particularly out-of-town persons, police officers be lenient and issue at least one warning before making arrests.

Action of Chief of Police John D. Fraser in prohibiting Pacific Electric cars from parking on Broadway, just east of Brand boulevard corner, will also be taken up with the City Manager. Director Ingledue declared that no sufficient cause for the action exists and that the order works a hardship on the railroad which maintains the service to the eastern part of Glendale strictly as an accommodation for residents of that section.

START SURVEY FOR PLANTS ON JAN. 1

Industrial Investigation Is Ordered by C. C.; Will Take Three Months

An industrial survey for Glendale was assured last night when the board of directors of the Chamber of Commerce empowered the survey committee to proceed with arrangements for the work. Actual work will be started, according to present plans, January 1, 1925, by N. M. Alderman, statistician supplied by the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce. Between 60 and 90 days will be required to complete the Glendale survey. This is considerably less time than was required for the work in Burbank. Much of the data gathered in the Burbank survey, being used here, will greatly expedite the procedure.

Mr. Alderman will conduct the local survey at the same time that he is completing a similar document for San Bernardino. The San Bernardino work has already been commenced. January 1 the statistician will come to Glendale for a three weeks' stay during which all preliminary work will be done and many hundreds of questionnaires sent out. After another short stay at San Bernardino to wind up the survey there, Mr. Alderman will return to Glendale to complete the local document.

The cost of the survey, a part of the money for which has already been raised by popular subscription, will probably not exceed $1,500. This is considered extremely reasonable, being made possible through the Los Angeles chamber which maintains the service for the convenience and advantage of smaller Southern California cities.

Frank L. Fox, chairman of the industrial survey committee of the Glendale Chamber of Commerce, brought the matter before the board last night, urging immediate action. Secretary Howard I. Wood reported on progress which had been made to date and other angles and features of the proposed survey.

ADD 10 MEMBERS TO GLENDALE C. C.

Hubbard, Egyptian Village Cafe, Saunders Paint Co., Service Water Heater Co., Glendale Mixed Mortar Co., Kinner Airplane & Motor Corporation, Glendale Employment Agency. Applications for membership were announced for the following: J. T. Edwards Studios Inc., Buffalo Dye Works, Blount's Cafe, Walter W. Butten, Glendale Dental Laboratory and Valley Plumbing & Supply Co.

Director W. L. Truitt, who with Director Arthur Campbell and Secretary Howard I. Wood, attended the industrial conference at Anaheim last Saturday, gave a report on the matters taken up at the conference.

Secretary Wood will confer with officials of the American Railway Express in an effort to get free express delivery to South Glendale. Recently, through the efforts of the chamber, free telegram delivery service was obtained for this section.

Mrs. Hudson Makes Plea at Luncheon to Assist Unfortunate Ones

Mrs. Hudson spoke at the club yesterday in the interest of the seventeen beneficiaries of the club. An offering taken netted $37. Club members desiring to aid Mrs. Hudson in her work may reach her by calling Glendale 2659-W.

WONDERS OF CITY TOLD BY SPEAKER

Gould H. Warren, Committee Chairman, Describes Grandeur, Location, Envy, Delights, Advancements, Ideals

Gould H. Warren, chairman of the Glendale radio committee of the Chamber of Commerce, told radio listeners-in last night that this city's grandeur is unsurpassed, that its strategic location in the midst of a great metropolitan area is conducive to the greatest industrial and commercial growth, that its natural equipment invites homeseekers, business men and manufacturers alike, that advancement here has been the most remarkable on record, and that the lofty idealism of its 55,000 inhabitants has builded a city which is the delight of residents and visitors alike. Mr. Warren was the only speaker. His talk consumed less than fifteen minutes of the hour allotted the Glendalians.

Glendale's first radio program under the direction of the Glendale Chamber of Commerce went off successfully over KFI last night. Glendale listened in and was proud of its artists, and proud of Glendale, as Mr. Warren painted it upon the canvass of other waves in eloquent words so that all the world could hear.

Program Pleases

The musical program with Mrs. Virginia Freeman, soprano, Wesley Kuhnle, pianist, and the Glendale Four from the First Methodist church, was carried out according to schedule excepting for several changes in the order of the numbers. Mrs. Freeman's pleasing voice rang clearly over the radio and her selections were warmly received in thousands of Glendale homes where radio parties were listening to the program. At downtown radio shops where large crowds gathered enthusiastic applause greeted Mrs. Freeman's offerings.

Mr. Kuhnle, well known to Glendale music lovers, played in his usual fine manner last night. It was his first appearance on a radio program. He carried the brunt of the musical burden opening and closing the program and playing four other classical interpretations. The Glendale Four performed in excellent style. The quartet of Dr. C. R. Lusby, Dr. P O. Lucas, Paul C. Butterfield and Frank Butterfield, have appeared on radio programs a number of times in the past and were at their best last night.

Directors of the chamber of commerce suspended the regular order of business at their meeting and listened in during the program. The directors extended a vote of thanks to all those appearing on the program, to the radio committee, Mr. Warren, J. Arthur Myers and R. Ernest Tucker, and to the Newton Electric Co. through whose courtesy the big receiving set at chamber headquarters was installed.

Address On Glendale

Mr. Warren's talk on "What Does Glendale Mean?" follows in full:

"Dear Friends of Radioland: It becomes my privilege as chairman of the Glendale Chamber of Commerce radio program committee, to introduce to you the Jewel City, Glendale.

"Time will not permit an exhaustive resume of my home town's grandeur, location, equipment, nerve, delights, advancement, lofty ideals and envy. Glendale is a very human city. Everything in Glendale stands for something it will be worth while to make a note of.

"My city's grandeur lies within the corporate limits of her sixteen square miles, and in the mountains that rise majestically on the northeast and on the west. All about is a panorama of beauty; sylvan glens, close packed with exquisite flowers, kissed by sparkling rivulets, which rise in springs of clear, cold waters from far back on the white-capped peaks to the northeast where Mount Wilson and Old Baldy stand sentinel-like above their brothers. Her streets are broad, well lighted and sensibly border-decked with palms and other trees. Here darts a saucy squirrel and there can be seen our own California mocking bird that pours forth sweet melody by both day and night. I have only hinted at her grandeur, but we must hurry on to her location.

Ideally Located

"Glendale is strategically located in a metropolitan area, with a condensed market of 1,500,000 people. The rich San Fernando valley, for which Glendale is the natural entrance and market, borders her on the northwest. During the last twelve months this valley has produced close to $25,000,000 in agricultural products. Glendale's back country yielded in 1923, $664,000,000 in oil alone and $65,000,000 in citrus fruits.

"Here is the largest olive grove in California. Chicken and dairy ranches of blue ribbon quality dot the valleys. She is outside the congestion of this great metropolitan area, yet within seven miles of downtown Los Angeles on the south. The fact that Frank Condon, whose article, "New Stuff," appeared in the November 8 issue of The Saturday Evening Post, classified Glendale as a suburb of Hollywood, is first-class proof of that gentleman's quali-

THINKING MINDS

What limited use some of us make of our brains, how superficial is our thinking, was the lesson impressed upon the editor of The Evening News when, through the courtesy of Charles N. Elder, he was privileged to attend the meeting of the Building and Loan associations at the Alexandria hotel Monday night, where he heard Dr. Ely of the University of Wisconsin, who is in Los Angeles in connection with the economic aspects of the aqueduct.

Most of us see only the surface of things not connected with our own calling. Every economic question has many complications and ramifications, but we see only the one that is uppermost, and too often we view that from a selfish angle.

Dr. Ely is an economic expert. He has a mind that has been trained to be analytical. When any problem is presented to him he sees all its aspects, all its complexities in their relative importance. He can see the strength or weakness of any proposition clearly and truly, while many of us would be concerning ourselves over some unimportant feature of the question.

Dr. Ely mentioned the short-sightedness of officials in large cities in trying to work out the traffic problem, and at the same time allowing the erection of high buildings, the very thing that tends to concentrate activity, bring more people into a limited area and render the surroundings of less value by making them so difficult of access. He spoke of the fallacy of urging the cultivation of more of the waste land when one of our economic problems is agricultural over-production; of advocating the conservation of the forests while taxing timber lands.

The speaker brought out clearly the economic value of the well-conducted Building and Loan association. Thousands of people have been enabled to build homes through these agencies who never would have saved sufficient money to build without this aid, and these homes have enriched the country from an economic standpoint. So these associations have been a big factor in building up the country. The banks, he says, cannot consistently oppose Building and Loan associations, for the banks themselves eventually reap a benefit from their activities, since the more homes in a community, the richer it is.

DEMAND FOR THE NEW

The world has not yet reached the stage where there is no demand for something better. No matter what great inventions are brought out, they are rarely in perfected form. Changes and improvements are being made constantly in the linotype, the automobile, the airplane, the radio and every mechanical device in use. And there is plenty of room for new things, too. The one who takes the attitude that everything has been done, that there is no opportunity to bring out something different is very wrong. There is always opportunity for initiative.

Many of the toys and novelties on sale in this country now are made in Germany, Austria, France, Japan and Czecho-Slovakia. Perhaps they can be manufactured in those countries by cheap labor and sold at a lower price than if made here. But many Americans have become rich by bringing out some new toy, appliance or novelty, simply designed and easily manufactured, yet filling some real or fancied need. And from the number and variety of such articles of foreign manufacture on the market it would seem that American initiative need not go a-begging for a job.

CHURCHES AND BUSINESS METHODS

A pastor, responding to a call from a San Jacinto church, outlined his program to the members and asked that the church give no bazaars, food sales or entertainments for the purpose of raising revenue, but that the church be supported by voluntary contributions. The Sunday school will be reorganized, doing away with quarterlies and lesson helps and study will be directly from the Bible. These helps are all right, this pastor says, but should be considered as a crutch, which is not needed by a well man. He will organize a class for the training of teachers.

This preacher asks his people also that at least ten per cent of the funds in the treasury be spent for advertising, a system of reaching the people, he explained, that he has found most effective in getting them into church.

Business methods must prevail in the modern church as well as in any other institution in which large numbers of people are interested.

COOLIDGE NO KING

One of the admirable qualities of President Coolidge is that he is in the habit of getting the opinions of the best minds of the country on any issue before making a decision. He does not depend entirely upon his own judgment nor childishly take advantage of the authority that has been given him when the country's interests may be better served by conferring with others and learning from them.

When the wisdom of the government's policy toward reclamation of desert lands was questioned, the president appointed a commission of men to investigate and make a recommendation. The same course was pursued before adopting a policy in the matter of agricultural relief. And now he favors a thorough study of the Muscle Shoals question by a committee, who will recommend a plan of action.

This tendency of the president to get the opinions of others not only shows sound sense, but executive ability.

WE WANT NO CHANGE

Commenting upon the predicament of Emma Goldman who would like to return to the United States, the San Bernardino Sun says, "We have too many here already who like the country, but not the government, and who want to remain with us individually, but upset our government for us. We who are prejudiced in favor of the American brand of representative government and are not enamored of the idea that the ignorant minority shall rule arbitrarily the intelligent majority, realize that we need more outgoing individuals of that sort than incoming ones."

There is room for improvement in the administration of our government, but the American people were rather decided in their manner of endorsing the form of our government at the recent election. There is no room here for those who "love us but detest our government."

THE CARRIAGE WAITS, MY LORD!

Drugs

By DR. FRANK CRANE

Some time ago, in San Mateo, California, Frank Ross Chambers, Jr., son of the chairman of the board of directors of the Rogers Peet company, and his seventeen-year-old daughter Marilouise, committed suicide within two weeks of each other.

Marilouise was found dead on October 8 at midnight, and Friday, October 24, her father shot and killed himself in his California home.

The history of the case which has been made public through the press reveals the terrible grip which drugs get upon anyone, whether they be rich or poor.

Mr. Prentiss, the lawyer who had charge of Mr. Chambers' business, said that both he and his daughter were addicted to the use of drugs, besides which Mr. Chambers was an incurable drunkard. They had plenty of money and every opportunity to live satisfactory lives. But the drug demon had got hold of them and the end of both was death.

If those who are beginning the use of drugs realized the terrible end that is in store for them there would be a slump in the drug market. The trouble is that people cannot see far enough ahead. One who is addicted to drugs, in nine cases out of ten, is hopeless.

The trouble is that no one can help him except himself. No one can get inside of him and strengthen the part that needs strengthening, his will and determination.

Only he can attend to that.

And the trouble is that this very will power is that which is first attacked by the drug and the addict lacks the courage usually to endure the suffering that is implied by the cure.

This is a clear case where people must be protected against themselves.

Laws regulating the manufacturing and sale of drugs should be secured by international arrangement among all countries. No one country is safe against the machinations of another.

Horoscope

Astrologers read this as a doubtful day, for, while none of the planets dominate strongly, there is much to warn against any risks in business or professional life.

The influence of distinctly adverse aspects prevails until after 11 o'clock in the morning and it is wise to avoid all important decisions, changes and new undertakings.

It is well to be cautious regarding vehicles, machinery and electricity.

Danger of accidents will be great during this day in which there may be a fatality when least warned.

Under this direction of the stars all acts should be deliberate and no risks should be taken.

Uranus being in close proximity to Mars accents the martial spirit, encouraging talk of preparedness.

All the signs appear to presage a winter of severe weather in many parts of the land, and there will be unusual hegiras for Florida and California.

Controversies regarding loans are to be expected as Mars draws nearer to the square with Jupiter.

Dissensions and even threatened wars are indicated as probable with economic entanglements and financial complications as the basis of troubles.

Secret treaties with foreign powers are prognosticated, and they are likely to contain jokers, more or less perilous.

Lack of candor or straightforwardness may distinguish certain foreign nations in their dealings with Americans, who should be much on guard in all international matters.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the forecast of a quiet year in which their business and domestic affairs will proceed as usual.

Children born on this day probably will have smooth and successful careers. These subjects of Sagittarius usually are outspoken, self-reliant, ambitious and persevering.

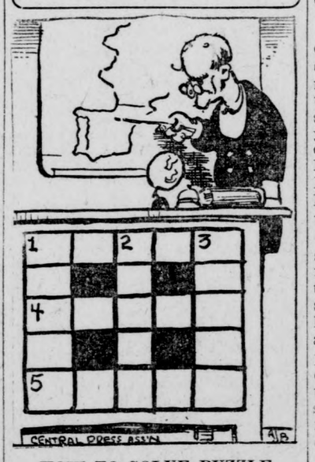
Puzzle



HOW TO SOLVE PUZZLE

The words start in the numbered squares and run either across or down. Only one letter is placed in each white square. If the proper words are found each combination of letters in the white squares will form words. The key to the puzzle—the first word—is given in the drawing. Below are keys to the other words.

(Running Across)

Word 1 a country in southwestern Europe.

Word 4 a famous river in Germany.

Word 5 smeared or soiled.

(Running Down)

Word 1 to play on a stringed musical instrument in an unskillful, rough or noisy manner.

Word 2 out of order, faulty.

Word 3 in want.

Who's Who

Germany faces the unusual event of the president and chancellor changing places. Recent rumors, from Berlin have stated that, to appease the desires of some of his personal enemies and yet continue the general policies of his government, President Ebert will resign. Chancellor Marx will be elected president and Ebert will be named chancellor under the new regime.

This is one of the few occasions since he took over his present office on which Herr Ebert has attracted much attention to himself. As president of the Reich his open interventions in public affairs have been few, and in his private life he has continued the existence of a typical German of the middle class and has constantly refrained from anything resembling official pomp and circumstance.

These homely virtues had much to do with his election in February, 1919, by the Constituent Assembly of Weimar (he had already held the office since the previous November). But they make him a popular target for the wits and caricaturists of his country.

So does the fact that Germany's chief executive is a former saddler and the son of a tailor. His political opponents miss no opportunity to bring this up. His portly figure and plump countenance make easier their task of lampooning him. Two years ago a photograph of the president in bathing costume was circulated widely in Germany until the government suppressed it.

Like most other political men who are conspicuous figures in Germany today, Herr Ebert first came into prominence during the war years. He was born in Heidelberg in 1871, so that he is now in his fifty-fourth year, and he has been a Socialist from the beginning.

In 1908 he became of the majority faction of the Socialists and Reichstag deputy from Dusseldorf. Four years later he had taken over the leadership once held by August Bebel, and when the war came, like most of his party associates, he supported the German war aims.

In April, 1916, he defended German militarism in a public speech, and he supported unlimited submarine warfare, but in August, 1917, he attacked in the Reichstag the foreign policy of the kaisen's government. Finally, in October, 1918, he demanded that the war be brought to a close and, after Prince Max of Baden resigned, on November 29, 1918, Herr Ebert became chancellor.

In the Council of People's Commissaries that was then formed he had charge of internal and military affairs, became the council's president, and, on November 7, 1918, provisional president of Germany.

Today's Poem

WILD GEESE

How oft against the sunset sky or moon
I watched that moving zigzag of spread wings
In unforgotten Autumn's gone too soon,
In unforgotten Springs!
Creatures of desolation, far they fly
Above all lands bound by the curling foam;
In misty fens, wild moors and trackless sky
These wild things have their home.
They know the tundra of Siberian coasts,
And tropic marshes by the Indian seas;
They know the clouds and night and starry hosts
From Cruz to Pleiades.
Dark flying rune against the western glow—
It tells the sweep and loneliness of things,
Symbol of Autumns vanished long ago,
Symbol of coming Springs!

BURBANK TO GET SUPPORT OF CITY

Glendale C. C. Will Aid In Securing Location for Southern Branch

Glendale Chamber of Commerce will throw its support to Burbank in the event that city decides to compete for the proposed new location of the University of California, Southern Branch. If Burbank does not make a bid for the university, the Glendale chamber will support some other locality in the immediate vicinity of Los Angeles, falling in line with Hollywood and Santa Monica, which are making a stiff fight against the removal of the school any great distance from Los Angeles proper.

Because of the fact that from 600 to 1000 acres of land will be required, it has been decided by the chamber that Glendale cannot compete. There is no available tract of land approaching this size requirement available here.

The energetic efforts of Santa Barbara on the north, San Diego on the south and Riverside and Orange in the interior, to get the new university, are frowned upon by the Glendale Chamber of Commerce board. This was brought out at the board meeting last night when George Lyons, who has been made chairman of a special university committee, reported on a meeting held in Los Angeles last Saturday.

At the meeting, attended by representatives of chambers of commerce and other organizations from virtually every city south of the Tehachapi, it was decided to give the site quest widespread publicity and ask every city to submit a proposed location. Glendale will not join in this procedure unless in recommending a Burbank site or some other one considered desirable and advantageous to this city, but located elsewhere.

at a conference between Dr. G. Kaemmerling of the city health department and a committee from the chamber headed by S. C. Singer. It is believed a sufficient appropriation to commence this work can be made under an existing city ordinance.

In order to bring forcibly to the minds of Christmas shoppers the necessity of buying in Glendale, a Chamber of Commerce representative will appear before all Glendale service and luncheon clubs and ask the members to back the movement. Each service club member will be asked to carry the message of "Try Glendale First" home to his family in order to get the maximum results within a short time.

GLENDALE ART TO BE SHOWN AT CLUB

Local Artists Get Chance To Exhibit Work at Clubhouse

Work of Glendale artists will be seen during the month of December at the Tuesday Afternoon clubhouse, where, under the auspices of the fine arts department, there will be an exhibit in the banquet hall of paintings by Glendale artists of the Glendale Art association.

At the department meeting yesterday John W. Cotton, instructor, talked on classic lettering. During the art appreciation hour, Mrs. Roy Ballagh, curator, gave a sketch of the life of Thomas Moran, 88 year old California artist of Santa Barbara.

At the meeting December 23 Mr. Cotton will give a talk on Christmas cards. The department is to join with the Glendale Art association Friday night, December 12 for a Christmas at the home of Mrs. Ballagh, 202 West Doran street.

Mrs. Ballagh announced that the sketching class is to meet Friday afternoon at 1 o'clock at her home, to motor to various places for work.

LEGION NOTES

Every American Legion post in California has been invited to attend the Pasadena Tournament of Roses, according to an announcement made by State Adjutant James K. Fisk. National Commander James A. Drain of the Legion will be a guest at the tournament and it is planned to make a great showing in his honor.

The colors of all the posts, whether representatives of the organization are on hand or not, will be grouped in the parade, according to the present plans. State Adjutant Fisk is gathering in the colors for the parade demonstration for National Commander Drain.

Legislation by Congress to place all agencies effecting the care of sick and disabled veterans of all American wars under the central control of the United States Veterans' bureau is to be asked next year by the American Legion rehabilitation officers, State Adjutant James K. Fisk of the Department of California has been informed by national headquarters.

The ten branches of the National Home for Disabled Volunteer soldiers would come under the management of the Veterans' bureau if Congress approves the plan.

Calling upon war-time workers throughout California to assist him in bringing Christmas cheer to the thousands of disabled veterans in government and private hospitals, State Commander Nathan F. Coombs of the American Legion has issued an appeal through the three hundred posts of the legion to aid in the work. Commander Coombs is asking citizens to communicate with the Legion post in their community in order that the names and addresses of the disabled veterans may be obtained. It is his plan to have the citizens visit the hospitals and "adopt" for one or more days a disabled veteran. "During the World war," Commander Coombs points out, "the homes of the nation were opened to the men and women serving their country. In this hour of their infirmity how much more appropriate that these same loyal citizens should again receive in their homes those who have sacrificed much for them and for their country. In this way it is the hope of the legion to acquaint the public with the great price of war and to further the legion's contention that there shall be no more wars unless by universal conscription of all the nation's resources."

The number of ex-service men homesick and stranded in France seems to grow rather than diminish." This is the news from the American Legion post in Paris which is working to reduce the number of stranded World war soldiers in France.

SHARP INTEREST IN REALTY DRIVE

Miss Travers, of Local Board Told Campaign For Members Hit

Miss Winifred Travers, secretary of the Glendale Realty board, today received from John N. D. Griffith, president of the California Association of Realty Board secretaries, the following message:

"First day's reports of realty board secretaries indicate drive will be successful throughout California. Your board should have its report to me, so that I can tabulate the ethical brokers and appreciative property owners who are supporting this great statewide movement. We have been on the job every week in the year selling California and we need the help of every reputable dealer in California to make the realty boards of the state even stronger assets to community development than they have been."

The drive which started in this city yesterday to increase the membership in the local board has created widespread interest among the local realty brokers and salesmen.

Nations Unite Sending China Good Will Note

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10.—The state department today made public the text of the note handed the Chinese government by the representatives of the United States, Belgium, Great Britain, France, Italy and The Netherlands. In the note the foreign powers expressed the hope that the provisional government in Peking will respect and duly fulfill all treaties, conventions and other engagements between China and the powers, and further declared that they are willing and anxious to proceed as soon as practicable, with the carrying out of the measures contemplated in the Washington treaties and resolutions.

COMMENT by GIL A. COWAN

But do not delay until the last minute—for your sake as well as that of the clerks—in getting the more desirable gifts.

Every year it is necessary for stores and newspapers to sound warning that late Christmas shopping means grief. If you do not want to be trampled by the crowds better do your buying today, or this week at the latest.

In Los Angeles already the crowds are reaching a point of saturation, so far as traffic is concerned.

It is a pleasure to trade in Glendale, with its wide business streets, roomy stores, where your friends are ready to serve you.

Glendale merchants have a very select and representative stock designed to please Glendale people, observation of the advertising columns of The Glendale Evening News reveals.

You will do well to make this newspaper your shopping guide.

Reviewing the day's news, we see that the Glendale traffic officers are making the merry Christmas season more merry by summoning many good citizens to court on parking charges, as well as alleged speeding.

Fair warning was served on shoppers that the one-hour parking ordinance was going to be enforced, although it is a little difficult to remember just what days our various regulations are in force—and what days they are not—as Harry Carr has said in The Times.

Also, The Los Angeles Record is publishing articles to show that the drive on speeders is NOT reducing the number of accidents. Indeed, the only results of the personally conducted campaign by Brothers Heath in Los Angeles have been to slow traffic to snail's pace where the wily motorists think they are being watched. Elswhere they are making up lost time by greater speed than ever before.

Employers insist on speed, they insist on clerks being at work on time; judges insist that witness, counsel and prisoner be at court punctually. As long as the clock rules America we are going to have the utmost speed possible, Heath brothers to the contrary, notwithstanding.

The state Legislature is getting all wound up to go into session at Sacramento the first of the year.

Already the same old song of reapportionment is being sung by the southern delegation. The constitution says that redistricting shall be effected every ten years. But the cow counties, as the rural districts are dubbed, including several south of Tehachapi, now nicely hold a balance of power, and they will NOT vote for reapportionment. You can bet on that!

San Francisco and Oakland, not to mention Sacramento and several other jealous northern centers of population, will NOT permit their representatives to vote for reapportionment that will give Los Angeles more representation. You can bet on that!

Only constitutional amendment will bring about reapportionment, unless the governor should be so suicidally inclined as to join forces with the solons from the south in blocking all legislation until reapportionment of some sort is effected.

Much better the effort be used to provide funds for the completion of transcontinental highway links. Florida is getting the tourist crop because of California's desert roads—and nothing else but! The day is past when we depend on railroads alone for tourists. They travel by automobile where roads will permit.

And that's that!

TUJUNGA NOTES

TUJUNGA, Dec. 10.—Arrangements have been completed for a big charity costume ball next Friday, December 12, at the Garden of the Moon pavilion, Tujunga. Under the auspices of the newly formed Service club it is planned to make this the outstanding social affair of the Tujunga winter season. The Service club is formed by representatives of social, religious and civic organizations of the valley and will devote the proceeds to local relief and Christmas cheer work.

Heretofore the relief work of the district was done separately by each organization as their means permitted. This year it was planned to co-operate and the organization of the Service club was the result. Dr. Stella Conner of the Community church is president of the organization and Mrs. A. J. Scribner, president of the American Legion Auxiliary, Post 250, is secretary. The Parent-Teacher association, Kiwanis club, and other organizations are also represented.

The ball will be a fancy costume affair and there will be prizes for the best costumes worn by lady and gentleman. Some special features in the way of entertainment are being arranged for. Use of the pavilion has been donated by the management and music has also been offered by an orchestra. The Service club plans to use 100 per cent of the proceeds for Christmas work among the needy. Everyone in the Verdugo hills and surrounding communities is invited to attend "a cheery affair for Christmas cheer."

Charles and Glen Geissenger of Kansas have been visiting Mr. Russell of the Russell store. They made the trip from Kansas by automobile.

J. I. Farr, new proprietor of the Community store at Summit and Michigan avenues, has made extensive improvements in the store and stock. A large stock of Christmas goods is on display and the proprietor plans to enlarge the building.

Mrs. E. D'Aule recently entertained a party of friends at her home, complimenting Mrs. E. F. Bradford.

Ed Seigitz is to open a garage in a building now being erected at Valley Center.

Another new bus, the fourth to be put in operation between Tujunga and Los Angeles in the past few months, is now in operation by the Verdugo Hills Transportation company. The new busses represent an investment of $50,000.

Artist members of the Sagebrushers' Art club are holding a sale of small paintings at the Laura Lee studio. Laura Lee Sweet, sub-chairman of the district, is making plans for participating in the Eisteddfod to be held in March at Glendale and has asked everyone with talent to enter the contest.

Dr. Hughes, district superintendent of the Methodist denomination, will conduct the services at the Community church next Wednesday, December 17. Further plans for the transfer of the membership of the Community church to the Methodist organization are expected to be made at that time.

BURBANK NEWS

BURBANK, Dec. 10.—A "junior" Chamber of Commerce, made up of high school pupils, is the experiment to be tried by this city. Manager J. W. Charleville of the "senior" chamber is responsible for the suggestion, which has been unanimously approved by the board of directors and will soon be put into practice.

The junior chamber will function in a way similar to the regular chamber, with the older body acting somewhat as a big brother, the juniors being allowed to carry on certain work in connection with community development that would naturally fall under the province of such an organization.

It is also planned to form, from representatives of the various women's clubs of the community, a women's auxiliary to the Chamber of Commerce, with the idea of still further spreading the influence of the chamber to all phases of community life.

Officer Baines of the Burbank police department "pulled a bloomer" the other night that got the fireboys' goat. While fumbling around at headquarters for his overcoat, he pulled what he thought was the light switch, in order to shed some illumination on the scene. To his despair he learned, when it was too late and pandemonium was unleashed, that he had sounded the fire alarm siren. Out of their bunks in "the wee sma' hours" tumbled the fire boys, engines snorted, bells clanged and all for nothing. Being a good sport, Officer Baines is taking his kidding good-naturedly.

J. S. Wright and family of 926 Tujunga avenue have left for Dinuba to make their home. They lived there before coming to Burbank.

fications as one of America's leading humorists.

"The average altitude of the Jewel City is 700 feet, while a half hour's ride in one direction will take us to an altitude of over 2000 feet, in the other just fifteen miles away stretches the whitecapped blue of the marvelous Pacific ocean.

City's Equipment

"Now we come to Glendale's equipment. Here, where life is better, is an opportunity to secure what thousands of eastern and coast manufacturers are seeking, namely, to get outside the overcrowded, big cities and yet be close enough to have all the advantages of such centers of population. More than 300 trains serve Glendale daily. These include the service at the new Southern Pacific main line station and that over the Union Pacific, which is now building a new station here. Transportation facilities are ample. We have four railroads, three bus lines, and five main boulevards leading to all parts of the American continent. Through the San Pedro harbor the world's markets are within easy reach.

"Glendale has a large area wherein industrial acreage may be secured at nearly one-third the cost of acreage in the metropolitan industrial centers. These advantages are multiplied by the fact that here burdened executives and factory workers are at their best in a climate conducive twelve months of the years to a very small labor turnover. Glendale is exceptionally well fitted to suppy the needs of either major industries or Pacific coast branches of large eastern factories. Eighty manufacturing plants have located here, which manufacture various articles, from bottled soft drinks to airplanes and window shade cloth.

"Glendale's equipment includes not only the manufacturing and commercial advantages but also a citizenry of highest character. Our men are big men, sun-crowned men, inspirational men, whose sons and daughters are to be found in more than twenty churches of various denominations. M-O-T-H-E-R, mother, has a wondrous significance in Glendale. It could not be otherwise with the bountiful blessings all about. Here she may rear her children, secure in the knowledge that environment and educational facilities are of the best. A normal, healthy city is but the outgrowth of that type of citizenry. Our people are moved by a nervous energy that is generated by the ambitions we hold for her. So must you, through contagious contact with our people, wish to remain among Glendalians after you have come, seen, and been conquered by their enthusiastic outlook. Glendale's equipment covers the entire field of life's necessities and luxuries.

Glendale Delights

"She has many delights, of which we will mention but a few. Glendale's 55,555 industrious, thrifty, divinely contented men, women and children expended nearly $1,000,000 the past two years for new church homes. In addition, hundreds of thousands of dollars' worth of improvements to the present houses of worship are being planned. We have barely completed a $100,000 high school and already plans are well under way for the Junior High school in another section of the city, to care fo rthe rapid influx of students. We nave just gone over the top in a $275,000 drive for a complete, up-to-the-minute Young Men's Christian Association building. Already a site has been purchased and construction will begin as soon as possible. Surely there is no truer wisdom than the jealous care of the character of our country's youth through its schools and Christian institutions.

"Glendale justly may be proud of her reputation as a homing community. Here, indeed, are the handclasp and heart tug of friendship a little stronger. Our Glendale Sanitarium, recently completed at a million dollar cost, is among the finest in the country. We delight that our city is not just arriving. She has arrived. She is now moving in to take up her abode with the most progressive cities of the country. No less an authority than the United States government has, through the census, given her the right to the title—"Fastest Growing City in America."

Civic Advancement

"Let us note her advancement while we quickly peruse her record. She increased in population during fourteen years over 2000 per cent, or, in other words, from 2700 people in 1910 to 55,555 in 1924. She has jumped from an assessed valuation of $9,000,000 in 1920 until today her assessed valuation is over $47,000,000. Nine banks today have monthly bank clearings of $4,500,000. We have already started the laying of the first unit of a new sewer system. This unit, which comprises the main trunk line, is to cost over $1,500,000.

"There is now in process of building or under contract nearly $1,250,000 worth of new hotels. The West Coast theatres is nearing completion of a $500,000 show house to seat 2500 people. Last year there were laid 36 miles of water mains and 56 miles of paved streets. Building permits this year have been nearly $1,00,000 per month, surpassing even last year's remarkable record.

Lofty Ideals

"Glendale is a city of lofty ideals. She has carried off eleven first prizes in the Pasadena Tournament of Roses. She has a community service organfzation, which, in addition to playground supervision and other activities, has discovered and developed local talent in vocal, instrumental and dramatic art programs. Already her Symphony orchestra of fifty pieces and her Choral club of over a hundred voices have won wide recognition.

"Among the various civic and luncheon clubs are the Rotary, Exchange, realty board, Kiwanis, and chamber of commerce. Beside a long list of nationally known fraternal orders and clubs for men there are numerous club activities for women, both of the social and business types. All are filling a special need in the city.

"Then, Glendale, being a very human city, has an envy. It is not a destructive but a constructive envy. It is not a consuming but a life-giving envy. She envies you the welcome that awaits you here. She envies you of other states that thrill of exhiliration that will be yours when you step out of a blanket of snow left behind and onto a carpet of green velvet, patterned with roses, carnations, dahlias and forget-me-nots. She envies you the exploitation of her resources.

"I have shown you Glendale; rich in civic pride and duties well done; rich in virile, manly youth; rich in nature's bounteous harvests; rich in a faith to do and a will to dare. Glendale is the cynosure of an admiring and admirable nation. Glendale has a luminous future, more vivid, if that were possible, than her past. Glendale is prepared for the thousands yet to come.

"'It ain't the individual nor the army as a whole, but the everlastin' team work of every bloomin' soul' that makes the Jewel City, Glendale, 'The Fastest Growing City In America'."

Picture Is Made of Tiny New Planet

CHICAGO, Dec. 10.—A new asteroid, or tiny planet, revolving about the sun between the orbits of Mars and Jupiter, has been photographed by astronomers at Yerkes Observatory, Williams Bay, Wis. The pictures were taken at Hamburg, Germany.

There are about a thousand known asteroids, however, according to Prof. E. B. Frost, of the Williams Bay Observatory, and little importance is to be attached to this new one, which, he says, probably is part of a larger planet which blew up into fragments in bygone days. The largest is only 450 miles in diameter, and they serve astronomers only in tests of the law of gravity, he said.

GIVES LECTURE ON TOPIC OF CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

SPEAKER APPEARS AT HIGH SCHOOL

'Christian Science the Awakener' Is Subject of Talk Made Last Night By Miss Lucia C. Coulson

Miss Lucia C. Coulson, C.S., of London, England, gave a lecture on "Christian Science, the Awakener," at the Glendale Union High school, East Broadway, last night. The lecturer is a member of the board of lectureship of the mother church, the First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass. The lecturer was introduced by L. V. Martin, first reader of the local church. The lecture follows in full:

The present age is above all else a practical age, and so it is natural that everyone who approaches the subject of Christian Science should ask first of all, What has Christian Science to offer, and does it make good: The best answer I can think of is that it offers a present, practical provable salvation from whatever troubles you, whether ills of body or mind; and that it makes good by open, positive proof, by demonstration. In the words of its Discoverer, "The Principle of Christian Science is divine. Its rule is, that man shall utilize the divine power" (Miscellaneous Writings, p. 69).

This age is also one of progress and discovery, and Christian Science presents progress in the spiritual realm, the discovery of the Science of Christianity. Progress is an awakening. The history of the human race is the record of its gradual awakening to the realization of its inherent powers, and the inherent resources of the universe. Consequently, its progress has consisted of the increase of knowledge or the elimination of ignorance. All of our modern wonders, our up-to-date inventions, were present for the ancients to discover and to use. They were right there all the time, and nothing but ignorance kept them from seing them and enjoying their benefits. The savage with his rude club, and the civilized barbarian with his war-god and his trained legionaries may be likened to a giant fast asleep, dwelling in a world of wonders with closed eyes.

Roughly speaking, it may perhaps be said that humanity's progress can be divided into three stages. The first was the belief that all is matter. The second that man and the universe are a mixture of matter and mind. The third stage, which we are now entering upon, is the conviction that all is Mind. Let us very briefly trace the history of these three stages. If we glance at the art, at the monuments, above all at the idols of Egypt, we are appalled by the dense materiality of their conception. The huge chariots, which literally ground humanity to dust, the colossal stone images before which the best educated worshippers of that day bowed in terror, all give us an overwhelming sense of oppression, a sense of the hopelessness of matter and the worship of matter. Yet behold the helplessness of all this ponderous materiality when confronted with one right idea, a faint concept of the one God, a glimpse of the power of right thinking, of righteous prayer. With no human power to help him, Moses led the people of Israel out of Egyptian bondage, and because of their higher understanding, they went out full-handed, their needs were supplied.

The government and glory of ancient Rome with its mythology showed the same material basis, ending in the hopeless corruption and destruction of its civilization. In the fulness of time Jesus the Christ appeared to awaken mankind from the night of paganism and bring the pure concept of God as Spirit and as Father. Signs and wonders again followed this further step out of the tyranny of matter. Fetters were stricken from human consciousness and it rose higher, rose to the concept of Life as immortal, and of man as the child of God. This glorious light which enabled the early Christians to heal the sick and raise the dead, and rise above the fury of persecution was lost sight of in the third century, through the influx of paganism and the corruption of the early church; and the Dark Ages followed.

With the translation of the Bible and the invention of the printing press came another awakening. Human consciousness freed itself from more of the fetters of ignorance and superstition, and the barbarism of the Middle Ages abated. The Renaissance brought with it literary giants, and those single-hearted intrepid reformers, known as the Pilgrim Fathers, who came from Great Britain across the ocean to found this great country, and whose pure motive in coming was to find freedom to worship God. In this age the dual concept of creation as material and spiritual flourished and continued until, in our day, physical science admits matter to be a practical negation, and modern thinkers and modern psychology have advanced the opinion that mind controls matter and that mind is primarily both cause and effect. These thinkers, however, did not advance this opinion until after Mrs. Eddy's discovery that all is Mind; but, with this step forward has come a wonderful increase of opportunity and dominion. Human consciousness has freed itself from limitation in every direction. We have to-day navigation of the air, wireless telegraphy, the radiocasting which makes it possible for the secluded, the bedridden, and the village inhabitants to be present mentally at the greatest public events, at the triumphs of music and oratory. Where are the limits, the boundaries, the restrictions for former ages? "They have melted into thin air." And will progress be stayed here? Rather shall we advance to ever greater freedom and achievement! But right here comes a momentous question. If we concede that all is mind and that mind is the human mind, have we not substituted for the tyranny of matter the tyranny of mind? Are the sorrows of humanity thereby lessened? Have its sufferings abated? While we look to the human mind for relief, we are still without God in the world. This mind which can be used for good can be used just as easily for evil. There seem to be minds many, and the stronger mind will control the weaker, will dominate and tyrannize, so that the tyranny of Egypt and the Dark Ages will merely assume subtler and more elusive forms.

Just at this point comes the immense value, the great deliverance of Mrs. Eddy's discovery of the one divine Mind and its availability, which brought forth that tremendous declaration known to Christian Scientists as the "scientific statement of being." I will read you the first part of it (Science and Health, p. 468): "There is no life, truth, intelligence, nor substance in matter. All is infinite Mind and its infinite manifestation, for God is All-in-all." This discovery was not made by a college professor, steeped in scientific research. It came from a gentle New England woman and it came not from the intellect, but from the Spirit,—through revelation. It was Mary Baker's purity that enabled her to look through the apparition of matter and discern the things of God, the facts of Spirit. Her purity of desire and of purpose enabled her to be the first to awaken mankind to the wonderful possibilities lying within its reach and springing from the truth that God is Mind and man is His manifestation. This step in advance may seem transcendental to some of us today; but before registering an opinion on it, let us consider how transcendental our everyday beliefs and experiences would have seemed to bygone ages. Imagine the derisive laughter with which they would have greeted the suggestion of the possibility of the telephone or the radio or any other of our modern resources!

From the belief of gods many we have advanced to the worship of the one God. From the belief of minds many, may we not advance to the concept of the one Mind? Now, let us consider for a moment the present salvation of this concept of one divine Mind. Think of it! One infinite Mind and its universe of ideas, all in accord, all dwelling together in perfect harmony, infinite cooperation, universal agreement; the good of one the good of all, each living to bless and serve the other because in so doing he is himself blessed and enriched, each going to make up good's completeness. And this ideal state is the present fact of being according to Christian Science, the perfect concept to which humanity must attain, hidden from us by ignorance, superstition, and a limited and mistaken concept of things, and the great object of life is to gain an understanding of this divine Mind, a knowledge of how to bring its stupendous benefits into our experience, how to apply it to our present problems. To gain an understanding! That is all that is required. More understanding, further enlightenment, a still higher concept of God, even to waken to the fact of His omniscience, omnipresence, and omnipotence, which will break the last fetters that bind us to this world of sense and usher us into the universe of pure Mind.

In a beautiful passage dealing with the progress of the race, the recent Prime Minister of Great Britain, Ramsay MacDonald, has written that "the transformation is to come by the complete awakening of everything that quickens to higher and higher endeavor, to more and more truth and beauty. We might well go to where the spring is to be found, and knowing what a mysterious choir of joyful sound and wonderful blend of beauty it is, turn to our work with the secret of success in our possession—the cooperation and harmony of all the qualities of good directed to universal ends" (New Leader, April 27, 1923).

Everything that has ever been gained for humanity has been gained as we have seen, through education. The struggle has always been between ignorance, mistaken beliefs, and true knowledge, true understanding. True knowledge is power and it is salvation. In proportion then as we know more of this infinite divine intelligence, we have that much more of power, that much more of dominion, that much more of substance, for true knowledge is substance as well as power. Let us take a purely human illustration to show why this is so. Any man who knows more than his fellows along a certain line has that much advantage over them, greater power in that direction. The trained musician, knowing more of the laws of harmony and possessing greater skill than his fellows in the application of those laws and in the management of his instrument, has power to thrill vast audiences, a power to uplift and inspire himself and his hearers, a power which may seem miraculous to those whose untrained and ungifted hands would produce discord rather than harmony. The same is true along any other line. The more we know of the principle of mathematics, the higher and harder the problems we are able to solve. In short, the more we get out of mathematics.

In one of Plato's Dialogues he stresses this point in a most humorous paragraph, showing that even the heir to the throne must give place to the cook when it becomes a matter of cooking. He says: "But come now, I asked, what will the great king do? When his meat is cooking, will he allow his eldest son, heir to the throne of Asia, to throw into the gravy whatever he chooses; or us, rather, if we come before him, and prove that we have a better idea than his son has, of dressing a dish?

"Us, to be sure, said he.

"And so, with everything else whatsoever, he would entrust it to us rather than to himself or his son, if he believed that we knew more about it than either of them did.

"Necessarily he would, Socrates.

"You see then, said I how the case stands, dear Lysis. In matters of which we have knowledge all people will trust us, whether Greeks or Barbarians, men or women."

We possess only what we know. Truth is in reality the only possession. The millionaire's wealth may vanish in a night, but the wealth and substance of the gifted author or the famous inventor cannot vanish as long as he continues to think. It must remain because it represents what he knows, what he has to give to the world.

Now there is one subject which is of greater value and importance than any other, which brings a greater return than any other to those who study it, for it is an infinite subject; and there is one Principle which is greaer than any other and which includes every other, for it is divine Principle, and this divine Principle is God.

Here the question arises, What do we mean by God and how can we be sure that He exists? At this point I am reminded of the story of two Arabs who were camping side by side in the desert. Through the long watches of the night one of them wrestled with the great problem of being, with doubt and fear as to whether Truth could indeed be known and found of men. Weary with the fruitlessness of speculation, he wandered out at the dawning of the day and beheld his brother, with his face towards the sunrise and his voice uplifted in prayer and praise, vibrant with the ecstasy of faith. Aching to share that assurance, he threw himself down beside his friend and asked, "How dost thou know that any Allah is?" The Arab flung out one bronze arm toward the glowing, reddening east about to flood the desert with light, and with the fire of the zealot in his eye he cried, "Dost need a torch to see the rising sun?"

There are two types of mankind, the skeptic and the saint! And the skeptic will never answer to any but the appeal of reason. That is why the Science of Christianity is come to convince those who cannot respond to the appeal of faith alone.

To return, however, to the question, What do we mean by God, and how can we be sure that He exists? There is one point upon which every one of us is agreed, one thing of which every one of us is certain, and that is that he himself exists. We are conscious of existence. Therefore consciousness is. We know too that this consciousness includes thinking and feeling, the ability to reason and to love. From this it surely follows that some force, some Creator must have brought us into being, must have been the Cause of our existence: and since the faculty of thinking is that which enables us to know that we exist or to be conscious, the Creator of consciousness must be Mind. We are probably all of us familiar with Descarte's great statement, "Je pense donc je suis." (I think, therefore I am.)

It would seem self-evident that this creative Mind could not be evil or contain evil, since evil is self-destructive,—that is its nature; and so we arrive at the conclusion that Mind, the Creator, is good, constructive, not destructive. This Mind must also be omnipresent, since whatever is wholly mental is not bounded or limited by space. Twice two are four is always present without respect to clime or continent, because it exists as idea without any material accompaniments. Our thoughts can go as quickly and easily to Europe as to the next room; it is the material body which prevents our accompanying them. The radio is showing us how to accomplish the elimination of space. Therefore pure Mind is omnipresent as well as good and creative. And as the Creator of the universe this Mind must be omniscient. It naturally knows all that it creates. Christian Science therefore speaks of God as the divine Mind, and declares that the product of Mind must be mental. What is Mind conscious of? Ideas. Therefore the universe of divine Mind is a universe of spiritual ideas.

So we come back to the premise of Christian Science that "all is infinite Mind and its infinite manifestation," and that this Mind is God. Now just what is the value of this discovery? And is there any need of it to-day? First, as to its value. It is proving effectual in the healing of lack, of sin, disease, and sorrow, in the elimination of fear, worry, and decrepitude, for it is, to quote its Discoverer, "bringing to light the scientific action of the divine Mind on human minds and bodies" (Science and Health, p. 210). Is there any need of such a Science? There can be little doubt as to the answer. In spite of all the achievements of human intelligence, as we look upon the world to-day, the question arises, Of what avail these inventions, this intensive civilization when the humanity they subserve is still no happier, no healthier, no holier, for them? As you go through the streets of a great city, the majority of the faces are graven with the evidences of inward trouble, turmoil, sickness, or vice; the shoulders of many are bowed with burdens grievous to be borne. Where is the radiance, the dominion, the glory of the man who was made in the image of God? Human intelligence is not enough! It does not hinder "man's inhumanity to man." "Who will show us any good?" is still the cry. Who will right the pitiful inequalities of men and nations? What is it that will bring happiness to the heart of humanity? And there is no answer, there can be no answer until we reach the discovery of a higher, a divine intelligence to be Love and to be here available. That is the answer to humanity's need—a God who is Love. Power and Love synonymous! For if these two are one, where is there any room for cruelty, or for oppression, where is there any room for suffering, for sorrow or for fear? Power and Love united and available! Love that is all-power, omnipotent! Power that is infinite Love!

It was of such a God that Jesus the Christ spoke and such a God that he proved for three years among men. Lack fled before him, the five thousand were fed in the desert in an hour. Sickness vanished, sin melted, and where was there any place left for sorrow, since the dead were raised at his word and restored to their beloved? Because he taught and proved such a God of love, the man who lived only thirty-three years among men, who had no learning according to human methods of education, but who knew "letters, having never learned;" who lived in an obscure province of Judea, and spoke in a dying tongue, who had no one to take down his words, and no press to print them, yet dates our era! His words live as no other words have ever lived. His code has become the highest standard of righteousness for the nations. Since the third century, however, the healing works, the signs following, have not been given. The God of love has been preached but not proved as Jesus proved Him until our day, and so mankind, tired of faith without works, has turned restlessly in every direction for a present-day salvation.

Right here Christian Science steps into the breach, and declares that the healing Christ, which Jesus demonstrated, is here to-day as much as it was nineteen centuries ago. Veiled, as it has been by the rubbish of materiality, this Christ, Truth, has risen to human consciousness and cast aside the graveclothes and is once more meeting humanity's present need.

"But warm, sweet, tender, even yet
A present help is He;
And faith has yet its Olivet,
And love its Galilee."
(J. G. Whittier)

Yes, the healing Christ is still the eternal hope of mankind, because, as the Christian Science textbook tells us (p. 18), "Christ is Truth," the truth about everything, the highest knowledge available, that which will break the worst fetters that bind us, the fetters of disease and sin.

You know the progress of mankind has all along kept pace with man's concept of Deity. As that concept advanced, civilization in its truest sense advanced. All through the Christian era, we have realized God's Fatherhood, to some extent, in our better concept of justice. Government has slowly become less tyrannical and more paternal in conception. Democracy has approximated the ideal of one universal family. It remained, however, for Christian Science to reveal the fulness and wholeness of Deity by presenting God as Mother.

It is a familiar experience with most people to watch the sunrise. There is the stir and shiver of the grey dawn and the gradual brightening of the sky, and then it seems as if the sun, gathering momentum, bursts through the clouds in the full splendor of a new day, awakening the whole earth. So, slowly through the centuries the right idea of God has advanced, gathering momentum in its stride, until it has burst upon this age in the full glory of completeness, the Father-Mother God, the divine Principle of all that exists, proclaiming Deity as All-in-all.

In a sermon entitled "The People's Idea of God" (p. 14), Mrs. Eddy has written, "Our ideas of divinity form our models of humanity." If there is one quality which our human models, our models of correction, our moral and civil codes, lack, it is the quality of true motherhood. With that quality permeating our governments, how greatly would the likelihood of war be lessened! For if our model of divinity includes the Motherhood of God, it will readily be seen that such an ideal excludes the thought of war. The god of vengeance which is always a war-god and which, in spite of progress, seems still to linger in our midst, would make its exit and give place to the gentler qualities of Mind. The patience that would reason and wait and strive to eliminate misunderstanding — the compassion that would take in another's point of view and consider another's advantage and desire the universal good—these would come to the front.

Even today our concept of God is too often that of a punishing God, too little that of a Comforter. I remember struggling to bring to a beginner in the study of Christian Science the sense of the fulness of good and blessing that were her birthright, but which the teaching of false theology did not allow her to claim. She argued something in this way: "Yes, but I don't deserve all those good things. God is just, and I may not be ready for healing, and it may not be God's will for me to have the happiness and the plenty you speak of." "But God is your Mother!" I replied at last, and then the argument yielded. "Oh, I see!" she said, "the mother doesn't wait for the child to deserve her love. She just delights to make him happy."

And then we spoke together about the true office of a mother. It is her business in the first place to protect and cherish, then to feed, to train, to comfort, to wipe away the tears. She gives and gives, and forgives! So, as we glimpse the tender Mother-love of God, justice is united to a fuller measure of mercy, vengeance and wrath melt before the infinite divine compassion which, seeing, in the words of a poet,

"Of what toys we make our joys,
How little understood
Thy great commanded good.
Thou'lt leave Thy wrath and say,
'I will be sorry for their childishness.'"

For we are children, all of us, children in understanding, foolish and wicked children sometimes, but still children, "toy-bewitched" as Coleridge puts it. That is why it is necessary to take the attitude of a child in approaching Deity, and why Christ Jesus told us we must become as little children. Does the child ever question where the next meal will come from or worry as to whether the home is secure? In absolute confidence he lives from day to day. Whatever he needs he claims as the natural and free gift of his parents. So we, who are children of a larger growth, should turn to our heavenly Parent, divine Mind, our Father-Mother God, and claim our birthright.

And what has Mind to bestow upon us? Not matter, not houses and barns, but simply ideas. Perhaps here the man who needs a roof to cover him or the wherewithal to pay his rent may exclaim, "Cold comfort!" But what after all is this real need? Is it just a roof or a sum of money that will satisfy? Surely in every case the need is for substance, for an income that will take care of all requirements. Well, enduring substance can only come through right ideas and their application, only through having something to give to the world which consequently brings us in a return. And the only sure and certain income which will never come to an end is the perpetual in-come of right ideas; for as we saw it at the start, the man who knows more than his fellows along any line is served by them and supported by them in return for the service which he himself renders. Turning thus from matter to Mind, we perceive the inexhaustible nature of supply. You cannot corner a divine idea. It belongs to all men equally, and each—as he applies it—can get the same amount out of it. The good of one becomes the good of all.

When we regard supply from this standpoint how foolish the idea of sparing and hoarding for an uncertain future becomes! While in our human working out, right economy is always essential, yet how can we save up ideas, and how can we imagine a day when divine Mind will cease to impart them? It is not our bank account that needs so much attention as our thinking; for positive, right thinking will look after our bank account.

I remember that at one time in my own experience I wanted to make the demonstration of self-support, and I was talking over the subject with a friend who was a Christian Scientist. "Well, what can you do?" he asked. "What training have you had?" Now, I had had no training in any direction. It had never occurred to me to learn to be self-supporting, and so, after considering this question as to what I could do I answered, "Nothing! Nothing at all!" "Well, there is one thing you can do," he replied, "you can think!" "Yes," I rejoined, "I can think." And through the teaching of Christian Science I had learned that right thinking is productive and right ideas become fruitful and externalize themselves. So I started to think, to understand more of the riches of infinite Mind, and to apply my understanding in the healing of the problems that presented themselves. And then, almost before I was aware of it, the problem of self support was solved.

Now, how does this understanding help us in regard to health? The Christian Science textbook tells us on page 421 that disease is really disarrangement. Mrs. Eddy saw clearly that the body answers to thought, that it is, as it were, the photograph of the mind. We all know that a thought of anger makes the face flush by quickening the circulation of the blood, that a thought of fear will make a man tremble, affecting the muscles and the nerves, that a thought of grief is manifested on the body by affecting the glands of the eyes so that the tears begin to flow. So you see, a disarranged thought is manifested in a disarrangement of the functions and organs of the body. In the science of numbers every figure has its right place and value. One five misplaced or one seven subtracted instead of added puts the whole sum out of order. In much the same way if our thoughts are misplaced, if a wrong thought is in the place of a right thought, if a thought of anxiety occupies the place of a thought of confidence, the whole body is put out of order and there is disarrangement. Now, Christian Science shows us how to differentiate between the false and the true, between human and divine thoughts. It teaches us how to refuse the one and choose the other. The thoughts that come from God are always harmonious, healthy, confident of good, and we can learn how to entertain such thoughts and dismiss the others. In her book, "Miscellaneous Writings" (p. 268), Mrs. Eddy has written, "God's preparations for the sick are potions of His own qualities." If you administer a dose of cheer and confidence and gratitude to someone struggling with discouragement, or a dose of unselfish love to someone afflicted with resentment and self-righteousness and then watch the effect, you will be surprised at the result.

What is the connection then between this infinite reservoir of right ideas—divine qualities—and the human need? Here we come to the function of prayer, and here is where the little child's outlook becomes important. Divine Mind does not withhold from its offspring their daily bread. Divine Love responds instantly to the desire of its children; but there must be desire, for as Science and Health tells us (p. 1), "desire is prayer."

Here most probably the question will be asked as to the difference or distinction between the popular notion of prayer and Christian Science treatment. I think it may be said that this lies mainly in the approach.

Turning from the contemplation of himself as mortal, with all a mortal's fears and failings, the Christian Scientist fixes his gaze steadily upon the divine perfection, and claims the divine sonship, which the error and ignorance of mortal selfhood is hiding. Faithfully he seeks to identify himself with the purity and harmony, the wholeness and beauty of the child of God, and the Father who seeth in secret hears and rewards him openly. Thus it may be said that Christian Science treatment is the prayer of affirmation.

In a pamphlet entitled "No and Yes" Mrs. Eddy has given us such a wonderful description of true prayer that I should like to read a part of it to you: "The silent intercession and unvoiced implorings is an honest and potent prayer to heal and save. . . . True prayer is not asking God for love; it is learning to love, and to include all mankind in one affection. . . . Prayer begets an awakened desire to be and do good. It makes new and scientific discoveries of God, of His goodness and power. It shows us more clearly than we saw before, what we already have and are; and most of all, it shows us what God is" (p. 39).

To see and understand more of what God is, more of the great I AM, means to come closer and nearer to divine intelligence, closer and nearer to divine power, to divine Love, consequently to know and to manifest more of intelligence, more of power, more of love, to approach nearer to the man who is image, the image and likeness of God.

In the olden days the courtier who stood at the king's right hand enjoyed more of his confidence and favor than the beggar in the outer court. Indeed, his power was second only to the king's. The book of Revelation speaks of Christ Jesus as being at the right hand of the throne of God, the highest degree of understanding and power, and in the ratio of our approach to his understanding shall we manifest his power. The higher our understanding of God the higher necessarily becomes our experience, the higher our human models.

Therefore whatever problem confronts us in Christian Science, we have been given the key to the same, and consequently Christian Scientists are a grateful people, and they are grateful to the one who gave them this key, who forged it in loneliness and struggle. When Mary Baker Eddy proclaimed the nothingness of matter and the allness of Mind, she met with ridicule, for natural scientists had not then discovered the mythical nature of the atom. It has since become common knowledge. When she declared that all true healing is spiritual, and that the healing of primitive Christianity is possible and natural to-day, she met with bitter antagonism, but now mental and spiritual healing are broadly acknowledged, and faith-healing is practised by those who reject Christian Science. It is time that we awakened to perceive and recognize who was the pioneer in these matters, and to give Mrs. Eddy her rightful place in history. She has her place in history also as the Founder of the Christian Science church and the Leader of the movement. In the Church Manual she laid down all the rules that are to guide it safely on, and in this Manual the relation of The Mother Church to its branches throughout the world is set forth.

Mrs. Eddy called her great work "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," and this is just what every student finds it to be. The Bible, generally speaking, has been read as something of the past, and its promises have been looked upon as only capable of fulfillment in the future; but to students of Christian Science it is a treasure house to which they have been furnished the key. The Bible was merely so much beautiful literature to me until I began reading Science and Health. Then the Scriptures became alive, vital, practical. I felt that the comfort, the promises in it were meant for me, and that there were stores of hidden wisdom for me to gather from its pages.

Sometimes we have been accused of having a different Bible, a Bible of our own. A more untrue statement could not be made. Mrs. Eddy has written on page 126 of Science and Health: "I have found nothing in ancient or in modern systems on which to found my own, except the teachings and demonstrations of our great Master and the lives of prophets and apostles. The Bible has been my only authority." Consequently we love the Bible and study it.

It has also been charged that we change the meaning of the Scriptures to suit ourselves, but the fact is that we base our whole teaching on the literal truth of the statements that God gave man dominion over the whole earth, that "now we are the sons of God," and on the command to heal the sick. I remember hearing of a woman who went to a Christian Science practitioner for treatment, and in the course of conversation when certain passages of the Bible were quoted, the patient said, "I don't like the word death, so instead I always use the word promotion." "Well," the practitioner said, "we will always say promotion when the word death comes and see how it works." Then she began to quote one of the sayings of Jesus, "He that keepeth my sayings shall never see promotion." Also, "The last enemy that shall be destroyed is promotion." So the patient decided it was better to accept the words as they are written, which is what Christian Scientists do.

I have heard it said that Christian Science is simply suggestion. The answer to that charge is already given in the doctrine of Christian Science that there is only one Mind, which necessarily consists of what is, or absolute Truth. Now, you cannot suggest the truth. If you tell a child twice two are four, that is not suggestion, but just the truth. You can suggest to him that twice two are five, and if he does not know enough he may accept the suggestion. The basis of suggestion and hypnotism is the belief of minds many, and as we saw, the deliverance from the conflict of many minds lies in the fact of one divine Mind. As we enter that region we are safe.

In conclusion, if this lecture has brought hope to some, if it has stimulated enquiry, and convinced any that there is comfort and healing for every problem, then I can only say that as you pursue this subject you will awaken to a new life, to new joys, new possibilities, new opportunities, and that you will find that this Science does indeed make good.

In the words of our Leader:

"For Christian Science brings to view
The great I Am, —
Omniscent power,—gleaming through
Mind, mother, man."
(Christ and Christmas, p. 39.)

NEW COAT FABRICS

PARIS, Dec. 10.—There is a beautiful new fabric, called "snow ziblikasha," which is much used today for coats of more than hip length, but not quite three-quarter length. It is a species of kasha cloth, with a curious moire pattern.

The National Girl Scouts of America has 160,000 members, of which 122,000 are less than 16 years old.

90 Per Cent of World's Motor Cars on Our Highways

There are 16,000,000 motor vehicles in the United States—approximately 90 per cent of all in the world.

This total is being increased at the rate of 4,000,000 a year.

What is the saturation point?

Ask any one of the 16,000,000 motorists trying to make headway through the countless traffic jams on some of our concrete highways. He will tell you, from the standpoint of comfort and safety in driving, the saturation point is already in sight.

Not a very encouraging outlook, is it, for the man about to buy his first automobile?

So you see car owners and prospective car owners are both interested—and have an immediate task confronting them.

What are you going to do about it? Even now you are curtailing the use of your car because you do not want to endure the discomfort, inconvenience and danger of traveling on congested, narrow highways.

Your highway officials need your support. They can't do much unless you stand squarely behind them.

To delay building more highways wide enough and strong enough to meet all the requirements of modern traffic will cost you more money than will an adequate system of Concrete Roads and Streets.

BUSINESS MEN IN SOUTH END ORGANIZE

L. G. Scovern Named Head Of Merchants' Body Just Formed

Announcement of the officers and directors of the newly-formed South Glendale Business Men's association was made today following a meeting of the association lats night at 1015 South Brand boulevard. L. G. Scovern is president of the organization; L. H. Wilson, first vice-president; E. L. Eames, second vice-president, and M. C. Patton, secretary and treasurer.

Directors are Mr. Scovern, Mr. Wilson, Mr. Eames, E. G. Thomas and J. W. Birney, all serving for two years, and W. W. Lee, A. F. Priest, G. V. Black, W. H. Daniel, Charles L. Peckham and W. W. Worley, who will serve for one year.

At the meeting last night a resolution, seeking an extension of the parking time limit on Brand boulevard to two hours, from now until January 1, was passed.

In announcing the officers and directors, Secretary Patton stated that the association will stand for the general improvement and welfare of the city. It will be a strictly non-profit organization, any any property owner or business man in the city may become a member.

Judge Lowe Wins First Point In Speeding Case

Judge Frank H. Lowe of the Glendale police court appeared this morning before Judge Hartley Shaw in department 25 of the Los Angeles superior court, and filed a demurrer to the writ of prohibition brought by Edgar F. Hughes on November 28. Judge Shaw took the demurrer under advisement and Judge Lowe returned to Glendale at 1 o'clock. He was represented by Leslie R. Tarr, city prosecutor.

Mr. Hughes, a resident of Los Angeles and an attorney of that city, was arrested in Glendale on November 24 for speeding. His case was set for November 28 and he filed a writ of prohibition, asking that Judge Shaw restrain Judge Lowe from hearing the case.

So far Mr. Hughes' case has not been heard and cannot be heard until the case is dismissed from the superior court, it is understood. Should the plaintiff be successful in having Judge Lowe restrained from hearing the case, it is believed that this method of evading the speed laws will become popular. He claims the arrest ticket did not tell how fast he was going.

Ministers' Sons Have Good Chance In World

CHICAGO, Dec. 10.—If your father was a minister your chances of gaining eminence are 2,400 to 1 better than are those of the laborer's son. The time-worn tradition that the clergyman's son was more frequently the inmate of prison than a successful man has been knocked in the head.

This was the assertion of Frank E. Hand, Supreme Vice Chief Ranger of the Independent Order of Foresters, in an address here before a child welfare conference.

"A recent questionnaire issued by the editors of Who's Who," said Mr. Hand, "showed that 2,695 persons in the 1923 edition, or 11.1 per cent, were children of preachers."

Erin, Home of Spuds, Has to Import Them

DUBLIN, Dec. 10.—Ireland, home of spuds, has lost her reputation as a potato-growing country.

To the great surprise of everybody, the last crop reports and import and export figures showed that Ireland now produces fewer potatoes than her population consumes. Thousands of tons of "Irish potatoes" have to be imported into the country every year.

U. S. Prepares Reply To British Debt Note

government is willing it should be, would effect none of the allied payments to any considerable degree.

The cost of the American army's occupation of the Rhine does not enter into the present controversy as that was settled by the Wadsworth agreement. It was observed today, incidentally, that Britain took much the same position in that controversy, which ended in a complete victory for the American viewpoint.

The British position, roughly summed up, is that, inasmuch as the United States did not ratify the treaty of Versalles, the United States has no right to share in the moneys that are obtained from Germany under that treaty.

American Rights

The American reply to this is that the allies have no right to take all of Germany's assets, figuratively milk the German cow dry, and then let this government whistle for its money. It takes, too, even the more basic position that the United States participated equally with other nations in the defeat of Germany, and by that fact established a right in equity and law to have a voice in the distribution of the fruits of that common victory, irrespective of whether we did or did not sign any treaty.

One of the principal points understood to be raised in the British note, which is signed by Austen Chamberlain, the new British minister of foreign affairs, is that the United States has no right to share in the German reparations payments until she has proceeded as far in liquidation of sequestered Germany property as have the other nations.

Great Britain, for instance, kept large blocks of German property in England and proceeded to use them to liquidate her own claims against Germany, paying herself reparations, in fact. The United States has not confiscated any German property, but, on the contrary, still is holding millions of dollars' worth in trust.

Reply Expected

The reply of the American government to this argument of Britain's will be that the Versailles treaty accorded to each of the allies the right of deciding for itself what should be done with sequestered German property. Great Britain did as she pleased and used much of it. Therefore, under the same right of self-determination, the American government cannot see where, in the language of the street, it is any of Great Britain's business what is done with German property in this country.

It will be pointed out that this government raised no objections to Great Britain's utilization of German property to pay herself reparations, and it now ill-becomes the British to raise any objections regarding American policy on the same subject.

The British note left the door open for an American reply, and officials expressed every confidence today that in the end a mutually satisfactory solution can be found—as has been the case in every anglo-American disagreement since the war.

Raw Eggs Are Eaten By Puppy From North

LIMA, Ohio, Dec. 10.—Morris B. West was puzzled. Donald B. McMillan, Arctic explorer, had given him a little blue fox Eskimo puppy. Before coming to Lima, the puppy had thrived on walrus meat. West was trying to decide upon a diet for the dog. The puppy helped him solve the problem.

Climbing to the top of a kitchen table, the dog ate nine eggs in a short time. Taking the eggs, one at a time, in his mouth, the puppy returned to the floor, where the eggs were eaten—shells and all—not one egg falling out of the dog's mouth.

DYE WORKS TO OPEN PLANT TO GUESTS

Fanset Firm's New $50,000 Building to Be Seen of Of Big Reception

An elaborate three-day program is announced by the Fanset Dye works, Inc., for the formal opening of their new $50,000 plant and office at 2995 Glendale boulevard Thursday night, December 11, at 8 o'clock. The strains of a popular Glendale orchestra will start the program, which will continue Friday and Saturday nights, for the benefit of the thousands of patrons of this long-established local concern.

Among the many attractive prizes that will be given away on the closing night is an Atwater-Kent radio set furnished by Psenner Brothers' Electric shop, 601 South Brand boulevard, states Lincoln Heyes, secretary-treasurer of the Fanset Dye works, Inc. Other prizes will include free orders for dry cleaning and pressing work. Refreshments will be served each night and on Friday night there will be demonstrations on the processes through which garments go to be cleaned, showing the large amount of costly machinery of the concern in active operation.

Reception and Dance

The large reception room of the Fanset Dye Works, Inc., will be the scene of the reception and dance on each night, Mr. Heyes stated today, and the numerous other large rooms will be thrown open to guests who are expected. The five large plate-glass show windows will be brilliantly illuminated and will display many examples of the work done by this company.

The building, which was recently completed, is of brick and stucco construction, occupying 75x40 feet on a lot fronting 125 feet on Glendale boulevard and extending back 100 feet. In the rear of the main building are two smaller structures, one 20x40 feet and the other 10x20 feet. The additional fifty feet of boulevard frontage not at present built upon is held by the concern for future expansion. The location at 213 East Broadway will be maintained as a branch, Mr. Heyes stated.

The officers of the Fanset Dye works, Inc., are: John H. Fanset, president; Daniel Campbell, vice-president, and Lincoln Heyes, secretary-treasurer.

CHANGE MULTIPLE LISTING, IS PLAN

Recommendations Are Made By J. I. Wernette at Meeting of Board

The multiple listing system on real estate sales, which has been the bone of contention among realtors for some time, will be changed, if recommendations made by J. I. Wernette, chairman of the multiple listing committee of the Glendale Realty board, at the meeting held today noon at the Egyptian Village, are adopted by the members of the board.

The question of radical changes in the system, or the elimination of the present system and the trying out of a new plan, was widely discussed by the members. The recommendations of Mr. Wernette follow:

"1—Group to be organized from those members wishing to join whose organization is absolutely 100 per cent for the system.

"2—Ten dollars fee to be paid for every initial listing. Listing office to pay this fee, with the idea that, as the system is perfected, the $10 fee may be collected from property owners, and deducted from commission when sale is made.

"3—Each listing to be appraised by some member, or members, of the Multiple Listing committee, before the listing is accepted.

"4—Every listing to be advertised once each day in one of the Glendale papers, for a period of thirty days. Advertisements to be under supervision of committee appointed for that purpose, and to be alternated between the two daily papers as recommended by committee. Display ad to be used, and to occupy same space daily.

"5—Listings to be taken for a thirty-day period.

"6—When sales are made, notice of sale, showing selling office, to be inserted in daily ad, to be run for length of time as may be decided by listing office.

"7—Group to be organized to commence working under new rules January 1, 1925, and group to be closed to all other members for a period of thirty days until organization is stabilized.

"J. I. WERNETTE,
"Chairman."

Walter Horstman spoke on the two benefit performances to be given tonight and tomorrow night by the Dobinson Players. J. M. Boland read a letter from Everett A. White, state president, complimenting the local board on the plans for membership week.

Report on Classes

D. C. Cassellman, chairman of the educational committee, reported on the formation of classes in the educational courses. Applications must be submitted before December 20, he said, and the first class will be held on January 8. E. P. Hayward will be the leader for the first lesson, he announced.

The annual banquet will be held January 6, Jack Galvin, chairman of the entertainment committee, announced. The state officers will be present at that time, he said. The banquet will be held at the Oakmont Country club, and will be followed by a dance.

Three active members and seven associate members have been secured since the membership drive started, W. P. Hope, chairman of that committee, reported. Arthur Campbell urged the members to buy in Glendale. Charles B. Guthrie also suggested persons buying real estate through members of the Realty board.

MENTAL EXERCISE TO PROLONG LIFE

Analytical Psychologist Tells Way to Relax Mind And Body

CHICAGO, Dec. 10.—A debutante can dance straight through for nineteen hours. A business man isn't tired after a fourteen-hour day.

"And besides that," Frederick Pierce, internationally known analytical psychologist, told the Executives' club of Chicago, "you don't worry, and you feel better than you ever did."

He told them how to increase their working hours and still not shorten their lives, by taking an exercise known as the De Cubitas exercise. According to Mr. Pierce, his workout is entirely mental.

"The exercise is based on the complete relaxation of the automatic, or unconscious, brain center, which occupies three-fourths of the entire mentality and consists of the nervous system controlling muscles, glands and all other organs," he told them.

"The attention is centered on a special set of muscles. Hold an arm at right angles, then shift the attention to another set of muscles. The first arm then drops automatically to your side, in a state of complete and unconscious relaxation. The whole body is rested in this manner," concluded the speaker.

Mr. Pierce says this is an unfailing rest exercise for all who find they do not enjoy a sufficient number of waking "peppy" hours.

FIND NEW MINES IN GOLD CENTER

Tennerite, Worth $139,000 To Ton, Uncovered at Bottom of Shaft

DENVER, Dec. 10.—With new capital pouring into development work in the Colorado hills that have produced many millions in valuable ores, and hundreds of prospectors trekking through abandoned tunnels, the mining industry in Colorado is staging a notable "come-back."

A recent extensive survey of the mining activities of the state disclosed that forty-two metals are produced in Colorado on a commercial basis. They range from arsenic, which brings fifteen cents a pound, to radium, with the enormous value of $120,000 per gram.

New strikes of rich ore have been reported from many former wealth-producing camps; but it remained for Cripple Creek, maker of many millionaires, to unearth one of the richest mineral veins in the history of the state's mining operations.

Revive Old Camp

After a period of ten years' depression, during which it was believed all the "golden cream" had been skimmed from the earth around this famous old mining camp, Cripple Creek reported the discovery of a rich deposit of the rarest and most valuable of minerals—tennerite.

The discovery, which is thrilling the mining world, was made in the state's deepest shaft—at the 3,000-foot level—and already several carloads of the mineral have been shipped to smelters.

Tennerite is a new member of the tellurium element, of which sylvanite and calaverite, also, are members. Unlike the latter, however, which are found in a flaky substance, the new discovery—tennerite—has been found in solid cubes and, according to Cripple Creek reports, assays as high as $139,000 per ton. The new gold discovery promises to put Cripple Creek again in the front rank among the gold-producing camps of the world.

The Wrath To Come

By E. PHILLIPS OPPENHEIM, Copyright 1924

CHAPTER LXI

"Under the circumstances," Grant went on, ignoring the remark, "I have ordered supper to be served in the saloon."

"Supper," Mr. Cornelius Blunn said thoughtfully. "God bless my soul! That's what the matter with me. I'm hungry!

The landing was a perfectly carried out farce. Everybody appeared to be in high spirits and even Prince von Diss managed to infuse a little cordiality into his thanks for the delightful hospitality he had experienced. Grant was very apologetic about the slight trouble with his engines. Everybody assured him, however, that the few hours at sea had been a pleasure, and studiously avoided any mention of the mingled farce and drama which they had evoked. On the subject of his dinner, which, after two postponements, had been fixed for the following night, Mr. Cornelius Blunn was eloquent.

"If a single one of you denies me," he declared, "I shall be hurt. It is going to give me the greatest possible pleasure to feel myself, for once, a host, to endeavor to repay a little the sumptuous hospitality I have received. We meet at the Hotel de Paris at eight o'clock. I have, by the bye, asked His Majesty, the King of Gothland, to meet you. His Majesty is most agreeable and his presence will in no way interfere with what I hope is going to be a cheery evening."

Susan and Grant exchanged amused glances more than once, during this somewhat drawn out business of leave-taking. Once she drew near enough to him to whisper.

"What a gorgeous farce! Aren't we all clever?"

"Blunn is the man I admire," he confided. "The Prince can't get away with it. He looks as though he wanted to stick a knife into some one."

There was a little sprinkling of journalists upon the quay, who had come down on the report that an accident had happened to the Grey Lady. They attached themselves especially to Baron Funderstrom, who had, however, one reply to them all.

"It was unfortunate that I could not attend the meeting of the Conference," he said, "owing to the slight accident to the engines which happened when we were some distance out at sea. As a matter of fact, however, I know quite well what the agenda consisted of and there was nothing in which my views did not coincide with the majority."

"You know," one of the journalists asked him, "that the Conference has decided to invite America to join the Pact?"

"I imagined that would take place," he admitted, without change of countenance. "The decision to forward the invitation was, I presume, unanimous?"

"The discussion took place in private session," the journalist pointed out. "But one understands that there was no opposition."

Grant glanced at his watch.

"I wonder if your father is back from Nice?" he said to Susan.

She shook her head.

"He doesn't usually arrive at the Villa until six o'clock. Now that the regular sessions have commenced, it may be even later."

"I will come up with you, if I may," he suggested. "I want to see him as soon as possible after he returns. Besides, I want to escape from these people."

"Come along," Susan agreed. "We had better take a carrigae. They may send hte car down when they see the yacht coming in, but as Peters will be over with Dad at Nice I should think it's doubtful."

They drove off and the remainder of the little company melted away from the pier, all apparently in the highest spirits.

"I must say one thing about Blunn," Grant declared, as they looked backward for a moment from the top of the hill. "He's an unprincipled scoundrel, but he's a sportsman."

"He's much better than that Prince von Diss or that terrible Scandinavian," Susan assented.

"I suppose you realize," he went on, "that you were the pluckiest person on board."

"Nonsense!" she answered, coloring with pleasure. "It was really a tremendous rag."

"I'm not quite sure what that misguided young officer of mine thought about it when he found himself held up by a girl," Grant observed drily. "They'd have brought it off but for you."

"I'm very glad," she murmured. "Next time you give a party like that I hope I'm there."

He looked at her for a moment a little wistfully. Youth had certainly befriended her. Gertrude had risen that morning with dark lines under her eyes and her manner on the deck had been almost spiritless. There was nothing in Susan's happy face and smiling expression to indicate a night of anxiety.

"I wish you weren't such a kid," he said, suddenly.

"What on earth do you mean?" she retorted. "I'm nearly twenty. Surely that is old enough for—for anything. Are you trying to insinuate that I am unintelligent or unformed or something?"

"You are very sweet as you are, Susan," he assured her. "It was a foolish wish. I wouldn't have you a day older. And here comes your father. They must have been back from Nice early."

Susan scarcely showed her usual joy at welcoming her parent. They all arrived at the Villa together and Lord Yeovil at once drew Grant into his little sanctum.

"I am inclined to think that you must have found a mare's nest, young fellow," he announced. "You can guess my news?"

"You have received the consent of the Pact to forward the invitation to America," Grant replied.

"Not only that, but my motion was supported by Prince Lutrecht."

"Were there no votes against it, then?" Grant asked incredulously.

"There were three black balls," Lord Yeovil admitted. "That was somewhat of a surprise to us, I must say, but, as you know, three was not sufficient to affect the result."

"Well," Grant told him, "I should like you to realize t' is. It is entirely due to Lady Susan that you had your own way in this matter. You have won the first step towards breaking up what I am convinced now to be a very malevolent conspiracy, and it was your daughter who made it possible."

"My daughter! Susan!" Lord Yeovil exclaimed. "What do you mean, Grant?"

"I mean that I was right—just as right as I knew I was, all the time. Lutrecht voted against it, as he had always meant to, whatever he said at the meeting. So did Katina. That's why he was rushed down from Berlin and why poor old Naga had to go. So did Gortz, the Russian. And, if I hadn't abducted Funderstrom and kept him away until too late to go to the meeting, his would have been the fourth vote."

"Abducted Funderstrom!" Lord Yeovil repeated wonderingly.

"That's just what we did, sir," Grant assented. "I kept him on the yacht until it was too late for him to go to Nice. There was a tremendous row," he went on, "practically a free fight, and, at one time, Blunn and Prince von Diss were having things their own way, and they very nearly got Funderstrom back. If it hadn't been for Susan, who took command when I was hors de combat and, with an automatic in her hand, frightened one of my navigating officers to death, they would have done."

Uncle Wiggily

By HOWARD R. GARIS

UNCLE WIGGILY'S NEW SHOES

"There is going to be a party next week," said Nurse Jane Fuzzy Wuzzy to Uncle Wiggily one day, so you had better get yourself a pair of new shoes."

"Is it going to be my party?" asked the bunny uncle. "This is the first I have heard of it—a sort of surprise party, I suppose."

"No, it isn't your party, though you are invited," said Miss Fuzzy Wuzzy. "It's a party Mrs. Wibble-wobble, the lady duck, is giving for Aunt Lettie, the goat. And I want you to look nice. Your old shoes are very shabby."

"But they are very easy on my toes," said the bunny. "I don't like new shoes."

"You must get them!" squeaked Nurse Jane, and that's all there was to it.

Uncle Wiggily hopped over the fields and through the woods on his way to the shoe store. On the way the bunny gentleman looked down at his old shoes and wiggled his toes inside them.

"There's plenty of room for my toes in these shoes," thought the bunny. "I know it won't be so jolly in the new shoes. But still I must look nice for the party."

"There you are—a fine, new, shiny pair of shoes," growled the bulldog gentleman who waited on Uncle Wiggily. "They fit you like the chocolate on top of the cheese."

"Yes-er-but-don't you think they're a trifle tight?" asked the bunny.

"They don't feel tight to me," said the bulldog gentleman.

"No, you aren't wearing them," spoke Uncle Wiggily, as he limped around in the new shoes. "But they are tight on me. I can't wiggle my toes at all."

"Nonsense! It isn't polite to wiggle your toes," growled the bulldog gentleman. "You should never do it! Take those shoes and hop along with you. Nurse Jane will say they are just right for the party."

So, even though they hurt him, Uncle Wiggily hopped out with the new shoes on his feet, and he carried his soft, comfortable old shoes in his paws. On through the woods he hopped. But he had to go slower and slower, because each step he took the new shoes pinched his feet so, until at last he had to stop and sit on a stump. He could go no further.

And while he was sitting there along came the Fox.

"Gurra! Gurra!" growled the Fox. "I'm just in time to nibble your ears!"

Uncle Wiggily thought of a trick to play on the bad chap.

"Look here, Mr. Fox," spoke the rabbit. "If I gave you a pair of new shoes, would you let my ears alone—just this once?"

"I might," answered the Fox. "Where are the new shoes?"

"On my feet," answered the bunny. "Take them off and you may have them."

"I'll do that!" barked the Fox. "I need a pair of shoes." So he pulled the new tight ones off Uncle Wiggily, and hard enough work it was. Then the Fox crowded his feet into the shoes. "They're a tight fit," he growled.

"They'll loosen up when you walk a bit—maybe," said Uncle Wiggily, speaking the last word in a whisper. Then the Fox ran away in the new shoes and the bunny put on his old ones and went home.

"Where are your new shoes for the party?" asked Nurse Jane.

"The Fox met me in the woods and took them off me," said the rabbit, truthfully enough. "The Fox took my new shoes."

"That's too bad," spoke Nurse Jane. "Too bad, indeed!"

Uncle Wiggily was glad of it, but he didn't dare say so. And he wore his old shoes to the party and had a fine time. But the Fox had corns on his toes for a month, because he was so proud that he would wear the new shoes, no matter how they pinched.

So this teaches us that silk dresses do not always keep the strawberry shortcake from catching cold. And if the clock doesn't strike itself in the face I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily's bag of leaves.

Diet And Health

By LULU HUNT PETERS, M. D.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS

CANCER—

B.—Don't depend upon advertised methods for curing cancer. They have been proven without exception to be worthless. Cancer is curable in the majority of cases, if treated properly in the early stages, but IF NEGLECTED until tissue destruction is great, the cancer cells become distributed throughout the body.

TEAM MATES—

"Dear Doctor Peters: I received your booklet on reducing. It's fine! I weighed 194 a week ago. I don't know how much I weigh now, but the roll of fat is gone from my shoulder and the tallow is fast disappearing from my abdomen.

"I find that my maintenance diet is only 1860 calories, so I've been keeping my daily calories less than 1000. Is this liable to prove harmful? This is my eighth day on the diet, and I'm making it a liquid day again. I feel like a million dollars.

"What would be the effect of reducing on a person who has diabetes?—N. D."

There are many people who have to go on less than 1200 calories to reduce at the rate of two pounds a week, especially those who are short and small-formed. It is perhaps better to have a little more liberal diet and once a week go on a liquid diet, as you are doing, and feel like a million dollars!

A person who has diabetes has to reduce, or die. (The disease itself thins the patient down sooner or later). But diabetic patients should be under the personal care of a specialist. Overweight and diabetes are pretty regular teammates. Joslin, and other specialists, say that nineteen out of twenty patients in their care, over forty years of age, are fat before they come down with the disease. That is one of the reasons why I pay so much attention in our column to reducing and keeping normal weight. Not only am I helping to prevent diabetes, but kidney, heart and scores of other diseases.

SUPERFLUOUS HAIR—

Mr. G.—Electrolysis and X-Rays are practically the only method of destroying hair roots. Go to a good dermatologist (skin specialist) for this treatment. For the few hairs on the tip of your nose—pull 'em out with tweezers. I've known of their becoming discouraged after a while.

VACCINES AND SERUMS—

S.—You know if you have an infectious disease and recover from it, it is because your blood and tissue cells have manufactured a defense against the poisons of that disease. In other words, you are immunized. In some diseases, such as smallpox, your immunity may last for life, so that you do not contract these diseases again. In other diseases, such as diphtheria, acute colds, pneumonia, the defense doesn't last so long.

Vaccination for smallpox and other diseases, artificially stimulates the body to manufacture the defense without having to have the original disease. In other words, it causes artificial active immunity. They are more of the nature of antidotes, and the reason they are effective is that the poisons of the disease are neutralized right away, before they poison the body. It is just the same as though you swallowed a poison and immediately after took an antidote to that poison, instead of waiting to see whether you would recover from it.

HYPERTROPHIED BREASTS—

E.—Large, heavy busts are most often due to accumuations of fat, but in your case, it is probably an overgrowth (hypertrophy) of the glandular tissues. It is not known what causes this overgrowth. It may be some disturbance of the internal secretory glands.

Occasionally breasts will grow so large that they have to be removed, but this is not common. As yours are not growing, I think you should content yourself with a firm brassiere.

Are you sure you are not overweight? I think you are, as you say your hips are also large. I suggest that you reduce somewhat. Perhaps the average weight is too much for you. Your other trouble suggests overweight. Better see your physician.

TUBERCULOSIS—

We have an article on tuberculosis, which you may have by sending a self-addressed, stamped envelope with your request.

Are you buying your share of Christmas seals, to help eradicate this disease?

Tomorrow—Answers to Correspondents

My Dear Followers:—When sending for material which we offer you please remember to enclose a stamped envelope bearing your full name and address. The pamphlet on reducing and gaining is the only one for which you must enclose four cents in stamps extra. Address your letters to me in care of this paper. Make them as brief as possible, not over 200 words, and type or write them legibly with ink. Please sign your name as evidence of good faith—we will not use it in any way. Remember it is impossible for me to diagnose for you or to answer you personally. I appreciate very much the beautiful letters you send me and regret it is impossible to give you individual advice. The questions you ask will be answered in the column as soon as possible; if they are of general interest. Don't forget the s.a.s.e., if you expect me to send you the information I have offered.

Casserole Eggs: Boil six eggs hard and cut them in halves lengthwise. Place them in a buttered casserole or baking dish. Now put two tablespoons of butter into a saucepan over the fire and when melted rub into it one and one-half tablespoons of flour; stir in also one-half cup of sweet milk, let boil up, then add one tablespoon of grated or chopped mild cheese and a pinch each of salt and pepper. Let this sauce cook over moderate heat till the cheese is melted and well blended with the other ingregients, then add to it two extra egg-yolks (uncooked) and mix well. Turn this over the halved hard-cooked eggs in the casserole, sprinkle another tablespoon of the cheese over all, and brown in a moderate oven. Serve. This may seem an expensive dish because of the number of eggs called for, but it is so nourishing and rich in protein value that it may be considered a meat substitute and may be served at dinner with baked potatoes, spinach, a fruit salad and cottage pudding.

Beef and Tomatoes en Casserole: Cut two pounds of lean beef into small pieces (or have your butcher do it for you). Place these in a frying pan in which two tablespoons of bacon fat is sizzling, and also add one bunch of celery cut in dice, and mix small onions peeled and sliced. Let the mixture fry till well browned, taking care not to scorch it. Then place it in a large casserole and add one can of tomatoes and one-fourth of a package of macaroni which has been previously cooked till tender in boiling salted water and drained. Also add one-fourth pound of finely chopped mild cheese and cover the mixture with bread crumbs. Slip the dish into a moderate oven, covered, to bake for one hour, then remove the cover and let continue to bake till the crumbs are well browned—perhaps another forty minutes. Serve hot.

Tapioca Onions: Peel twelve medium size onions and boil them till tender in salted water, then drain and place them (whole) in a buttered casserole. Mix two tablespoons of fine tapioca with two cups of sweet milk and pour this mixture around the hot cooked onions in the baking dish. Add two tablespoons of butter and enough salt and pepper to season according to individual liking. Bake for thirty to forty minutes in a moderate oven increasing the heat slightly at the end. Serve at once.

Chats On Beauty

By EDNA KENT FORBES

SCRUB YOUR SHOULDERS

Every bathroom should have a long-handled scrubbing brush included in its equipment. These brushes are awkward looking things with their curved handles and inevitable string loops to hang them up, but they are useful. Unless you are a bit of an acrobat you can't wash the back of your shoulders properly without one.

I have often noticed how many of the nicest looking women have myriads of blackheads over the shoulder blades and down the spine. It's been particularly noticeable lately, since backless and deep V-back, and slashed back evening dresses have been so popular. All the most carefully applied powder in the world cannot hide the fact that their backs just simply weren't well scrubbed every bath—like little Willie's ears.

Of course, a shower bath with a needle like spray that sends the water stinging and hot against the skin, will clear away blackheads, just as it will finally clear and tone up the skin of both the face and the rest of the body. But not all of us have the ideal shower bath, and some of us haven't shower baths at all. Lacking these, we should use the long handled brush and scrub and scrub with soap and hot water until the skin tingles. Such treatment will clear away the blackheads in no time for the skin of the body responds more quickly than the complexion of the face.

Conclude every bath by rubbing the back with a thick Turkish towel. Roll the towel into a rope, fling an end over the shoulder, catch it with the other hand, and rub back and forth over the skin. This, and the hot bath, will so tone up your system that it will cure backaches and headaches resulting from fatigue. It will also clear the skin of anything that clogs the pores.

M. D. W.:—In massaging the face use upward motions on each side of the mouth, with a rotary movement across the cheeks to the ears; upward over the temples, rotary around the eyes, and upward and across the forehead. To reduce the size of the pores, always finish off each cleansing by either dashing very cold water over the skin or by an ice rub.

Dolly D.:—Massage the scalp every night until it glows from the increased circulation; if there is any tendency to dryness use a very little bit of olive oil on your finger tips when you massage. The heated irons have dried out your hair, so you will have to stop using them until your hair recovers.

Tomorrow—Toning Up The Skin.

All inquiries addressed to Miss Forbes in care of the "Beauty Chats" department will be answered in these columns in their turn. This requires considerable time, however, owing to the great number received. So if a personal or quicker reply is desired, a stamped and self-addressed envelope must be enclosed with the question—The Editor.

Reservoir Grounds to Be Beautified by City

Work of grading the premises of the Tenth street reservoir has begun and the grounds will be beautified at once, Peter Diederich, superintendent of plant and production said today. The Verdugo road reservoir property and the grounds at the base of the high tower on Glendale Heights also will be graded and beautified.

In all cases an effort will be made to reproduce as nearly as possible the natural shrubbery of the environs, Mr. Diederich said, and it will henceforth be one of the duties of the public service department to maintain the grounds of the city reservoirs in a high state of artistic development. The recent rains have held up commencement of this work.

Actors and actresses of London who do not relish being stared at in public eating places, are to open a private club where they may have meals after performances.

GLENDALE TEAMS IN TWO CRUCIAL GAMES SATURDAY

Fleaweights Meet Huntington Park in Finals, Starting at 12:15 o'Clock; Regulars Play Orange at Patterson Stadium

The biggest crowd that ever witnessed a prep football game in Patterson stadium is expected to be on hand Saturday afternoon when a gridiron menu de luxe is dished up for Southern California fans. The occasion will be a double bill, with two Glendale teams as the leading attractions.

Opening the football fracas will be the contest to determine the 110-pound champions of Southern California. Glendale's fleaweights and Huntington Park's class C team will again clash. These two teams battled to a 7-7 tie on December 3 at Huntington Park in a championship game.

The fleaweight game will start promptly at 12:15 o'clock. The same officials that ruled the game at Huntington Park on December 3 will be in charge Saturday. They are: Referee, Blair; umpire, Burke; headlinesman, Evans.

Huntington Park was lucky in the last game, one of the Spartans blocking a punt while another one scooped it up and fell over the goal line for a touchdown, tying the score.

Meet Orangemen

Plenty of real football is predicted in the scrap between the Glendale and Orange heavyweights. These two teams played a scoreless tie game last Saturday at Santa Ana, and as the two teams take the field next Saturday, the Dynamiters are doped to have the edge on the prep players from the south.

A muddy field prevented the speedy Dynamite backs from getting into action at Santa Ana, but during the second half the ball was in the Orangemen's territory most of the time. Glendale outplayed Orange throughout the game, but on account of a slippery field, was unable to put over a touchdown. A wet, soggy ball spoiled several attempts at goal from placement.

The winner of Saturday's game in the heavyweight division will meet Compton next week in the finals for the Southern California title. Compton proved the right to plenty of argument last Saturday by defeating the fast Santa Maria team 24 to 14. Previous to that the Compton crew eliminated Pomona 35 to 20, after playing a 13-13 tie game on Thanksgiving day.

Dynamiters Favored

On the strength showed by the Dynamiters last Saturday against Orange, leading sport writers of Southern California are pointing to the Glendale squad as favorites over Orange next Saturday. Orange eliminated San Diego 29 to 20 in the first round of the playoff, and upset Sweetwater 14 to 0 in the second round. They were heavy favorites last week before the game with Glendale, but since that time, public opinion has swung to the local squad.

Today the Dynamiters will work out at Patterson stadium, and tomorrow the Orangemen will become acquainted with the field.

The heavyweight game will start at 2:15 o'clock. The officials will be: Referee, Daughtery; umpire, Brueckner; headlinesman, Korrell; field judge, Solomon. There will be no advance sale of tickets before the game, tickets being obtainable only at the field. The admission price will be twenty-five cents to students and seventy-five cents to adults.

NEW YORK, Dec. 10.—Southern California's victory over the Syracuse eleven at Los Angeles Saturday simply demonstrated once more the writer's assertion that proficiency in the grid iron game is now a national possession.

Otherwise the game proved little of importance. Syracuse is always a strong team, always may be relied upon to play football of meritorious brand. But it would be going too far to say that the Orange rated among the stronger teams of the country this season.

It was not in fact—as it usually is—one of the strong teams of the east. But the players probably had a pleasant journey and the bumps they received, no less the beating, will not minimize their enjoyment of what the see of the broad United States on their return to the east, nor lessen the beneficial effects in the way of instruction and widened viewpoint.

Notre Dame slowly but surely is reaping the benefits of eligibility rules and scholastic standards consistent with those of members of the western conference in the midwest section of the country.

Illinois is declining to imperil her chances in important big ten games by taking on the South Bend team next year showed a consideration of her players and her prestige which among some institutions do not outweigh the lure of bumper crowds and enhanced receipts.

Out in the middle west the foregathering of coaches of the big ten and other colleges resulted in some informal discussion of the forward pass such as has been heard in the east.

Is football, through the development in greater degree of the forward pass, going to approximate basketball? This is the question that is being widely debated.

Cornell, they say, will stress the running game less next season and place the emphasis on forward passing. Other teams will do likewise and many fine and spectacular features now associated with advancing the ball will, as a consequence ultimately become lost arts.

This may be putting it a bit strongly, but at any rate so runs the talk. Some such check upon the forward pass as a penalty for an incompleted overhead toss is being suggested.

Personally, the writer feels it would be well to let the pass alone, inasmuch as the present popularity of the game has been due to its use.

There is surely going to be a lot of kicking about the huddle system, even granting that it does hurry up a game.

Charlie Chaplin Must Part With Aged Mother

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10.—On the heels of Charlie Chaplin's romantic marriage to pretty Lita Grey, came the development today that he is to be separated from his aged mother, who has been an invalid for many years. Within the next few months the comedian and Mrs. Hannah Chaplin must bid each other farewell.

It was learned at the department of labor today that Mrs. Chaplin must leave the United States on or before next March 24. Mrs. Chaplin was admitted to this country from England in March of 1921 under bond for medical treatment, and is now in Los Angeles. At the time she was adjudged ineligible for citizenship and Chaplin was determined to give his mother every advantage known to medical science.

Since her arrival, Mrs. Chaplin has been under the care of eminent specialists and successive extensions of her original leave were granted.

Cotton Traders Wait Holiday Rush Season

ATLANTA, Ga., Dec. 10.—Southern cotton men profess to be waiting with complacency for a revival of spirited trading in cotton which they forecast for after the holidays. The crop is expected to total more than 13,000,000 bales but domestic and foreign mill demand has been growing and the market seems to them not to have taken into consideration increased European consumption and probable curtailment of the Egyptian and Indian yields owing to political disturbances. Local cotton men are talking of thirty cent cotton before spring.

NEW YORK, Dec. 10.—Mickey Walker, according to a Jersey report, has told Leo Flynn, Dave Shade's manager that he will fight Shade in Jersey within the next six weeks.

This agreement on the part of Walker follows a period of careful observation of Dave Shade, both in training and in his battle with Philly Kreug.

Flynn says he is willing to let his man enter a no-decision battle in Newark with the champion if in turn the champion will agree later to meet Shade in New York.

This may block everything. Walker at present is on the outs with the New York commission and he has a deadly fear of the sort of judges that might sit in judgment over the battle even if he and the commission patch up their troubles.

Speaking of the commission one may wonder what happened to change their minds in regard to the bout between Tommy Gibbons and Kid Norfolk next Tuesday night.

At first the commissioners said that Norfolk was not a good opponent for the St. Paul mixer. But later they seemed to have changed their minds.

Vibrations of guns of battleships twenty miles from shore, shook houses severely in Findochty, Scotland, recently.

By NORMAN E. BROWN
Written for The Evening News.

This all-western football team of 1924, presented for your consideration, is, to my mind, the most formidable aggregation that could be collected from the western colleges.

Doubt has always been expressed as to what real strength such mythical elevens, gathered together, would produce, because of the fact that the members would lack team work unless given a training period before their appearance.

This team has the merit of possessing a backfield that would need little such training. Three members of said backfield have played together all season, and the man who would pass the ball to these men has played with them. This fact alone would make this eleven more formidable than any other combination of stars.

Discussing the backfield first:

There is only one man in the west who can rival Elmer Layden of Notre Dame at fullback. That man is Lidberg of Minnesota. He is not only a good running back and a triple threat man, but a great defensive player. It was Lidberg who stopped Red Grange when Red and his Illinois interference had broken through Minnesota's first defense. Layden, however, excels Lidberg in the power of his attack.

Jim Crowley of Notre Dame and Red Grange of Illinois stand out by themselves as halfbacks. Both are wonders at advancing the ball under all conditions and in all style of attack.

Stuhldreher, Notre Dame quarter, has put one rival in the west—Leland Parkin of Iowa. The former is a better field general, however.

These four men, three of them from Notre Dame, form a backfield that—with the line listed above—could run, hammer and maneuver their way through any team.

The two halfbacks whom I would like on the bench to substitute for Crowley or Grange, should occasion require, are Baker of Northwestern and Shutte of Minnesota. Baker, with a much weaker defensive team and poorer interference, battled Grange all season for scoring honors in the Big Ten. Shutte held his own in the limelight against Grange when Illinois was turned back by Minnesota.

The fourth Notre Dame man on the team is Adam Walsh at center. His accurate passing and his brilliant roving work on defense stamps him as the king at his post. Captain Claypool of little Purdue is the only Big Ten center who compares with him, and Claypool is not quite his caliber

Rokusek is the only other Illinois man of all-western caliber, in my mind. Chicago's powerful line stopped Illinois', and Minnesota not only checked the Grangemen, but shattered the Illinois defense. The Illini team was built around Grange, and depended mainly upon him. Rokusek and Pulaski of Wisconsin are on a par.

The tackle selections include Weir of Nebraska. He is the outstanding lineman out of the Big Ten field. Hancock of Iowa played the same brilliant game that drew him all-western honors last season.

One of the men who undoubtedly would have won a place on the team at guard was kept out of the game most of the season with injuries. He is Fleckenstein of Iowa. He ranks with Abramson of Minnesota and Slaughter of Michigan, the men chosen for the first team.

The placing of Pondelik of Chicago on the line is a difficult one. He played tackle as well as guard. He and Beiberstein of Wisconsin easily formed the second best combination of guards.

Honorable mention on such all-star teams is perhaps a hollow honor, but there are many men of the west who deserve consideration in choosing an all-western eleven and yet who fall varying degrees short of the caliber of the men chosen, in my opinion.

Here are some of the men considered in the selection of the teams above:

ENDS—Dilweg of Marquette, Wheeler of Minnesota.

TACKLES—Gowdy of Chicago, who played tackle only on defense, but played it brilliantly. He played center on offense.

GUARDS—Fleckenstein (explained above), Miller of Illinois.

CENTERS—Griffiin of Iowa, Young of Ohio State, Horrell of California.

QUARTERS—Hall of Illinois, Hawkins of Southern California, Cameron of Ohio State.

HALVES—Thomas of Chicago. Friedman and Steger of Michigan, Rhodes of Nebraska, Mills of California, Peplaw of Minnesota.

TOMMY GIBBONS WINS EASY BOUT

Referee Stops Fight Early In Sixth; Kid Norfolk Floored Twice

NEW YORK, Dec. 10.—Willie Ward, alias Kid Norfolk, made his big mistake last night. He landed possibly a dozen solid punches on Tom Gibbons in an abbreviated bout and five of them went beyond the foul line. That was a most reprehensible proceeding.

It transformed the calm, supercourteous Gibbons into a merciless killer and the Kid became the victim of a technical knockout after 55 seconds of fighting in the sixth round.

It came as the fitting finale to the local Christmas fund show, with less than fifty seats left unsold in the spacious garden.

Tiger Is Winner

Only half of the honors went to the Caucasian race, however. In the semi-final, Tiger Flowers of Atlanta, a black man who fights like an ape, scored a technical knockout over Johnny Wilson, ex-middleweight champion, in the third round.

Two knockdowns with Norfolk the knockee, as it were, preceded the climax of the Gibbons affair. One came at the close of the fifth round from a right to the jaw, which deposited the Kid in a neutral corner for a short count.

The bell saved him. Gibbons tore into the Kid at the start of the sixth round and had him groggy in a few seconds with a right and left to the jaw. Norfolk covered desperately but Thomas stood over him calmly and selected his openings with deliberate care. Another right to the head brought the Kid's guard up and then a hard right to the body brought the Kid down. He remained as was for a count of six. Climbing painfully to his feet, he attempted to back away but only achieved a typical barroom pass-out, landing on his shoulder blades on the other side of the ring. The referee then stopped it.

SPORTDOM ALL OVER

By JOSEPH L. KELLEY
Of The Evening News Staff.

Now is time for movie stars to tell how they are going to spend Xmas. If world didn't know just where, how, when and by what means Priscilla Bonehead and Jacqueline Brighteyes were going to greet Santa Claus world just couldn't go about its business. That's one way of getting your name in the paper. Be movie star, then decide how you're going to spend Xmas.

Priscilla Bonehead, this Xmas, is going to take her equally bonehead pomeranian dog, parrot, maid and secretary to Big Bear so she and her family of animals and help can roll in the snow to remind her of the time a year back when she looked out of the window down on the farm waiting for Santa Claus and her father to repent and let her back in the kitchen.

Since she came to Hollywood she has found out there ain't no Santa Claus. That's why she's going to Big Bear over the Holidays. She wants to kid herself and her parrot and dog into believing there is one and Big Bear, she understands, offers such wonderful opportunities. Anyway it's a good excuse for going to Big Bear and getting her name in the paper.

We often wonder just how much of a star some of these "rabbit-brained" people (as Elinor Glyn characterizes those who make the movies possible) would be if there were no newspapers.

Betty Cute Tricks can't possibly get away until her other maid gets back from having her face lifted. Betty wants to go out and rough it. Her mother wasn't rough enough when Betty was young. She only made her wash the dishes three times a day and carry seven washings a week seven miles.

She can't imagine what it means to get out in the great open spaces and "be yourself." She's been somebody else so long she forgot all about the washings she used to carry and the dishes she washed. That's why she has the second maid. The maid promised not to remind her of her past.

Only yesterday a Los Angeles paper carried an elaborate bit of 2-col art showing a movie star gazing longingly at the head of a golf stick. The picture was captioned Miss Whosit Examines the Head of Her Golf Stick.

That's how little it takes to get your name in the paper if you're a movie star. The particular person shown gazing longingly at the head of golf stick was prominent in the movies when Charlie Ray was doing "Atmosphere." That's how old she is.

When all else fails a movie star can shoe-horn herself into a la Kellerman one-piecer and gets her legs in the paper. That is—if ain't gone beyond grandmother class. That's why golf sticks were necessary in above case.

Another great stunt to get in the papers is to be the "most wonderful mother in the world." That's good when all else fails. This "wonderful mother" sues for divorce the next day.

One movie star got in the headlines yesterday by stopping off in freezing Chicago, catching cold and chasing her pedigreed parrot from hotel suite. Movie stars can't seem to associate Xmas with anything but front page stuff.

One of screen's "most adored" sheiks and leading men recently had to resort to being champion flap-jack flipper of fillums to get in print. This same sheik would fire the cook if she suggested such a thing.

If that guy over in L. A. who yawned himself a broken jaw because double-crossing puzzle wouldn't come across wants to be really and gosh-all-mighty bored he wants to try and start something in that little town down state that ain't had a crime committed in 13 years.

He's wasting his time yawning broken jaws over puzzles in L. A. He might aid L. A. police in throwing light on mysterious disappearance in trunk of remains of "Hard Hearted Hannah." That's an idea.

Jack Dempsey signs to manage Estelle Taylor, movie star. And Shakespeare said there ain't anything new under sun.

BOXING NOTES

Jimmy McLarnin and Pal Moore got a draw last night at Jack Doyle's Vernon arena, in the opinion of the officials, but Pal outpointed Jimmy, in the opinion of the fight fans, who expressed their disapproval of the decision. Julius Jessick, in his first professional bout, won over Larry Murphy, a veteran. Big Mitch, Jim Jeffries' latest find, proved easy picking for Jack McGreer. Ad Rubidoux and Joe Pimenthal fought to a draw. Paul Duarte won over Terry Adams, Kid Ciriaco won over Johnny Wiske and George Lavoie dropped the decision to Babe Harris.

BOWLING SCORES

Rising's Hot Dogs made things hot for the Pacific Electrics last night at the Recreation alleys in a Major league match, taking two of the three games. The trolleymen ran wild in the first game, but were short of power in the second game, and got off on the wrong track for the third and deciding contest. Phelps of the winners was high score man, rolling 233 in the second game and 220 in the third. The scores:

CURRENT NEWS NOT WANTED ON RADIO

So Finds Midwest Stations As They Turn to Fun, Entertainment

By ROBERT T. SMALL
Special Correspondent of The Glendale Evening News, Copyright 1924

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Dec. 10.—Newspaper broadcasting stations here in the middle west have noticed that the radio audience does not care for the distribution of news over the air. Radio fans demand amusement. The day may come when the ether is used for general and commercial transmission, but as matters stand at the moment entertainment appears to be the real reason and purpose of the new art of broadcasting.

Big news events, such as the returns on the election, or the description of important football and baseball games, are proper subjects for broadcasting, it has been learned because news of this sort becomes entertainment. The description of a football game while it is in progress is the next best thing to seeing that game. As a matter of fact the radio audience does see it through the eyes of an expert and interpreter. The man at the receiving set learns more of the inside of the game than if he had been one of the 50,000 or 60,000 spectators, tucked away somewhere in a stadium under four or five blankets.

Fights Go Big

Descriptions of prize fights have been so good over the radio that many boxing fans in the east have remained at home rather than to fight their way into some obscure seat called a "ringside" reservation and costing $27.50 or more. The result is that Tex Rickard, most famous of the big promoters, has announced that in the future he will not permit broadcasting from the Rickard arenas, no matter where they may be located.

In the middle west the newspapers were the pioneers of the broadcasting game. The Detroit News, the Chicago Daily News, the St. Louis Post Dispatch were among the first. Being newspapers the thought naturally occurred to them that the radio audience would expect something—perhaps a great deal—from them in the way of dissemination of the news of the day, news from all over the world. For quite a while some of the papers persisted in putting a summary of the news on the air. Then it was noticed that in communications received from the fans not a word ever was said in praise of the news service. A jazz orchestra might get hundreds of encomiums, the news of the world apparently was left at the post.

News Cut Down

So the experimenters began cutting down on the broadcast space devoted to the news and began to enlarge upon the entertainment programs. More encomiums came from the fans. Canvasses revealed that there was no demand whatever for the general run of news. When a station began to send a summary of events at home and abroad, the radio bugs promptly began to tune off and try for another station which might have something in the way of amusement to offer.

Clearly it has been demonstrated that the news reading public desires to get its news from the newspapers; nothing apparently ever will take the place of the printed word in impressing itself upon the human brain. In the newspaper, furthermore, the reader gets the interpretation of the news which he always desires; gets it in an understanding way through the news and editorial columns. The reason the radio fan likes to get his sports events over the radio is because the man at the microphone interprets the play. In a broadcast of general news it was found that interpretation was well nigh impossible.

Entertainment, amusement, with occasionally a serious talk on some subject of general interest—these appear to be the essentials of radio success.

Local Radio Dealer Gets Distance on Set

H. O. Stanton, radio dealer at 121 South Central avenue, is highly elated at the performance of a Fada neutrodyne set of the five tube type, being able to get station WCX, the Detroit Free Press last night, and hearing Ilean Mack in a vocal solo. Mr. Stanton said the reception was clear and distinct.

Dancing Steps Help Christmas Shoppers Shop

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 10.—Teachers of esthetic dancing have found new means of promoting their profession in Los Angeles.

Christmas shopping congestion is such that only the most agile can navigate the streets.

One woman leaving a vaudeville theatre late in the afternoon was struck amidships by the whirlpool of pedestrians on a Hill street corner. She had just witnessed a youthful devotee of Terpsichore "do her stuff."

"I am going to learn to dance," the woman told her escort. "You can't walk in this mob."

"Hanged if you can; but football experience in bucking the line is good training."

"You graceful brute," she muttered. "I'll learn to dance."

Realtors Register In Educational Courses

Twenty-two Glendale realtors registered for the real estate educational course offered under the supervision of the Glendale Realty board and the University of Southern California at the organization of a class last night at the Harvard High school.

The educational meetings will commence January 8 and will be held each Thursday night for twenty weeks. All realtors are eligible to take the course. Registration lists will be held open for ten days, according to Miss Winnifred Travers, board secretary, to allow all those interested to enroll.

Each meeting will be in charge of one of the members of the educational committee of the Glendale Realty board. There will be a thirty-minute talk on the lesson by a speaker, in most cases, where possible, the author of the lesson. Following this there will be a thirty-minute forum meeting with time provided later for the answering of all questions.

All those satisfactorily completing the twenty weeks' course will be awarded certificates by the university. D. C. Cassellman, chairman of the educational committee, presided last night, with W. S. Kirk as secretary. George McDill is the other member of the committee.

The Spanish teachers of the Harvard High school acted as hostesses yesterday afternoon to the Spanish teachers of the Glendale city schools, at a meeting held at the "Model Bungalow" on the Harvard High school grounds. TROLLEY CARS FEAR BUSES' INVASION

Electric Railways Expert Warns Public Against Electric Scrapping

By J. C. ROYLE
Special Correspondent of The Glendale Evening News, Copyright 1924

BOSTON, Dec. 10.—The largest holders of street railway securities in this country are the people who ride on the cars, and the imperative necessity of protecting those investors even against themselves was expressed today by Lucian C. Storrs of New Haven, former president of the American Electric Railways association.

His utterances here before the New England motor transport conference, which may be taken as an official expression from the electric lines of the country, pointed out that the loss in scrapping street lines superseded by buses must be met out of bus earnings and that when these losses are included in bus fares, it will mean a higher rate of fare than that now charged on electric lines.

"The superseded physical property has a definite value which is represented by issues of stocks and bonds held in large quantities by the public," he said. "It will be necessary to permit net earnings by any new service of an amount in excess of the allowed 'fair return' sufficient to amortize the physical value to supersede over a term of years."

Local Transportation

Mr. Storrs also outlined what he declared were the vital principles to be followed in connection with future local transportation. "It is the duty of electric railway companies," he declared, "to supply all necessary local service in their respective territories whether by street cars or buses. It is the right of electric railways to control all local service without competition when they do it properly.

"Experience proves that buses cannot supercede electric cars in handling mass transportation although buses may be advantageously used in many ways. Although electric roads are operating buses widely, their experience has not been sufficient to determine what is the real place of the bus in local transportation, in view of the fact that half the daily street car riders numbering about 20,000,000 people, are moved during the 'peak load' hours of the day."

Explaining that his company operated buses on a large scale, Storrs emphasized the fact that these passengers must be handled at the rate of 5,000,000 per hour during the rush period. "This mass movement," he added, "is the real problem and one that only large capacity cars or trains can cope with. Try to visualize the effect in streets already congested to the point of saturation, of attempting to move this load by buses alone.

Bus Efficient Aid

"The development of the motor bus, however, has been an efficient aid in providing improved service. The flexibility of this transportation unit which is not confined to fixed routes makes it possible to extend service into areas that have been developed since street railway trackage was constructed and by coordinating with street car service to give better facilities to communities involved." The full utility of buses however, cannot be determined until serious efforts have been made to coordinate the two types of service. The hundreds of millions dollars spent in improving the highway have made possible a more recent facility for the conduct of transportation."

The value of the electric railway plants of the country, he explained constituted 2 per cent of the national wealth of over $5,600,000,000 and that this investment must be protected. The merchants of business sections depend on reliable transportation to bring customers to their stores and development of residential districts would be impossible without adjacent means of transportation. Such transportation, he said, could be supplied only by responsible organizations and not by individuals.

Telephone Lineman Is Hurt Working on Pole

Roy West of Los Angeles, a lineman of the Pacific Telephone & Telegraph Co., slipped on a pole yesterday afternoon and fell four feet before his safety belt held, striking his chin on a pole-step and sustaining a bad gash in the neck. He was able to descend from the pole and was rushed to the Glendale hospital by a passing motorist, where his wound was dressed. Later he drove his own car home. The accident happened on West Wilson avenue near Columbus avenue.

A boy was playing under the pole, Mr. West said, in explaining how the accident happened. In bending down to tell the boy to get out of the way, he slipped and struck his chin on an outjutting pole-step before his belt could check his fall. He was near the top of the pole when he slipped, he said.

Lusitania's Captain Travels In Steerage

LONDON, Dec. 10. —Captain William T. Turner, captain of th Lusitania when she was torpedoed by a German submarine during the World war, traveled steerage when he emigrated to Australia recently.

By traveling steerage he put his principles into practice for he dislikes luxury in any shape or form.

During the period in which he commanded various Cunard luxury liners, he became known as the "invisible captain" because he kept away from gaiety aboard ship and always spent the whole of his voyage superintending the navigation of his vessel.

Since his retirement in 1919 he has been living at Plymouth.

French Premier Seeks Parking For Elephant

MARSEILLES, France, Dec. 10. —Everybody is wondering what Prime Minister Herriot is going to do with Loulou, who recently arrived from Indo-China. Loulou weighs 2,400 pounds and is eleven years old. Monsieur Herriot will probably put her in the Lyon Zoo, because Loulou is an elephant.

Loulou was presented to the French Minister by Monsieur Merlin, Governor-General of French Indo-China, and was brought here under guard of the official government veterinary, Dr. Broudin, who says that Loulou got away with 400 bunches of bananas during the trip and was still hungry when the steamer docked.

NEW YORK CLOSING

By W. S. COUSINS
For International News Service.

NEW YORK, Dec. 10.—Reactionary tendencies dominated the stock market today and, while forward movements continued in a new movement of stocks and groups of stocks, and many new high prices for the year were established, the general direction of the market was downward. Weakness in oil stocks was a handicap to the market throughout most of the session, with stocks in this group losing from one to three points from Tuesday's high level.

As in previous sessions, there was a notable decline in the volume of offerings of speculative stocks at the lower price levels. No one was inclined to sacrifice values, even with the prospect of a quick turn in recently acquired stocks, and bearish traders who tried to bring about a general reaction found little encouragement in the way of an outpouring of long stocks. Considerable profit-taking was indulged in, but not enough to impose a heavy burden on the market, and in many cases represented only the shifting of speculative interest from one group of stocks to another.

The position of the steel trade gave new evidence of having made a remarkable improvement in the last few weeks. The copper stocks took the lead both in activity and buoyancy in the first period, with some of the steel stocks, a few of the rails and later the stocks of the mercantile companies joining in the advance. Anaconda repeated its best price of the year; Gulf States, Republic and Bethlehem led a moderate rally in the independent steels; May department stores gained five points, Sears-Roebuck two.

C. & O. was the best ground gainer of the railroad group, though good buying was seen in the Katy stocks. Southern railway, B. & O., Atchison and New York Central; St. Paul, Rock Island and a few of the low-priced rails did not fare so well, although losses were mostly fractional.

Stock sales today totaled 2,061,000 shares; bonds, $19,517,000.

XMAS DIVORCE GIVEN JOLT BY JUDGE

Famous Frisco Law Giver Cites Scheme To Aid Blameless Kids

By L. C. OWEN

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 10.—Divorce judges in other sections of the country, who would help spread a little more Christmas cheer, and at the same time possibly help cut down the rapidly growing number of divorced couples, might well follow in the footsteps of Superior Court Judge Thomas F. Graham of San Francisco.

Judge Graham, already considerably known to fame as California's "great reconciler," and who during his 18 years on the bench has probably heard more divorce actions than any living jurist, has evolved a little yuletide plot which in its final workings may make a very beneficent Santa Claus of the stern law itself.

The chief beneficiaries of the plot are expected to be a lot of unhappy children whose parents seek a permanent parting of the ways. Judge Graham has just announced that several score divorce cases scheduled to come before him for a hearing between now and Christmas will be laid on the shelf until after the holiday season. He also has issued a blanket order to all divorce seeking couples who have small children, and whose cases are on his court calendar, to forget their difference to the extent of providing their unhappy offspring with Christmas trees and other happy tokens of the Christmas season.

Another Scheme

Distraught youngsters whose warring parents seek surcease in legal severance, however, are not the only ones to whom Judge Graham seems to bring Christmas cheer. He has called upon childless divorce seekers whose cases are scheduled to come up in his court to eat Christmas dinner together—the inviting to be done by the one who took the aggressive in seeking a divorce.

"Of course my orders to childless couples who want divorces cannot be made mandatory—there's no way of punishing them if they fail to have Christmas dinner together," admits Judge Graham. "It's just a suggestion. In cases of divorce seeking couples with children, however, I propose to see that my instructions are followed out. It's going to be mandatory.

"What if they disobey? Well, the custody of children is all too frequently a bitter issue in divorce proceedings. Any father or mother who ignores my request may find that a parent who does not think enough of his or her children to show them a good time at Christmas may be considered unfitted to have their custody. It's Christmas cheer for the kiddies—or no kiddies."

Apropos the possibility of happy endings for divorce seeking fathers and mothers, mellowed by the kindly influences of the yuletide season, Judge Graham quotes a bit of one of Christ's own sermons—"And a little child shall lead them."

Two other students who had escaped previously were safely found by a searching party today near Whampoa.

REFORM NEEDS POINTED IN TAX LAWS

Inconsistency In Taking Money For Gifts Is Most Flagrant

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10.—While "tax reform" is not one of the administration proposals for this session of congress, there is unquestionably a good deal of sentiment in congress for adoption of the present revenue act where specific harm is being done in the application of the law.

Much has been said about the publicity provisions of the law but there is another phase, namely the gift tax, which is coming in for widespread criticism. Under the present act, every gift of more than $500 to any one person even to members of one's immediate family must be reported and is taxable if there already has been given away $50,000.

The tax applies to corporations, too, and the question has arisen whether companies will be inclined hereafter to give pensions to injured employes retiring at old age or to pay bonuses if these gifts are to be taxed and the total expense thus increased. If a company had a large number of employes the total taxes would be large even though the bonus to the individual employe might be small.

This tax on generosity if not philanthrophy in some instances together with the penalty that it imposes on the rightful distribution by companies of sums their employes have really earned by faithful service is all due to an effort to prevent avoidance of tax payments by the few who give their money to members of their family or close friends so as to escape high surtaxes.

Inequitable Features

Some of the inequitable features of the present law are to be noted in the case of a man who gives away $50,000 a year to another for ten years. That giver pays no taxes nor does the recipients. Since the tax is on an annual basis only the giving of $50,000 a year would avoid taxation and yet at the end of ten years a total of $500,000 would have been donated. Should a corporation attempt to give away $500,000 in any one year in bonuses to its employes the total tax would be $19,000. Yet in each case $500,000 is the amount of the gift.

The gift tax provision was inserted in the present law on the floor of the senate and was not referred to any committee:

"In consequence," says Secretary Mellon, "it was never thoroughly studied and not tied up with other provisions of the law. As an example, if a donor should give away a piece of property which cost him $50,000 and at the time of the gift was worth $100,000, he is taxed on the basis of what the property cost the donor, and would be obliged to report $50,000 profit for income tax purposes, although the property was sold at the same price which fixed its value for taxation as a gift.

"Aside from the grave constitutional question of the right of congress to tax gifts at all, the gift tax is an excellent illustration of the futility of trying to prevent avoidance of excessive taxes and still not penalize legitimate transactions.

Under the Statute

"Under the statute, if property is sold or exchanged, the difference between the value of the property and what is received is considered a gift made so if a man makes a bad bargain he suffers not only his loss on the bargain but he must pay a gift tax on this loss. The more he has lost the more tax he has to pay. The duty devolves upon the taxpayer to report every transaction where he received less in value than he gave and upon the bureau of internal revenue, therefore, to pass upon innumerable business transactions."

The secretary of the treasury says examples of the "unsound nature of this attempt to close loopholes for the avoidance of excessive taxes could well be multiplied" and that it is better "to adopt reasonable rates of taxation which do not compel avoidance and to avoid indirect and artificial restraints upon usual and proper transactions—something is wrong with our tax policy if legislation such as this is necessary to make the collection of revenue effective."

The senate committee which is investigating the administration of the bureau of internal revenue is headed by Senator Couzens of Michigan who has already found many things wrong with the gift tax and his committee is considering the recommendation in its reports of several amendments.

It may be a year before the whole problem of tax reform is tackled in earnest but the iniquities of the present law are every day demanding attention as the new law passed by congress last spring becomes more familiar to the taxpayers and the chances are they will learn their first lessons about its unique provisions from now on as they begin to prepare for the returns that are payable next March on transactions of every sort occurring in the year ending this month.

Pioneer Radio Dealer Seeks New Location

This will be the second social affair given by the association and since it is being given on a larger scale, a large attendance is anticipated, by the committee. Refreshments will be served after the entertainment. A petition for the opening up and widening of Glenoaks boulevard from Grand View avenue to the westerly city limits has been presented to the City Council.

At least 25,000 miles of wire will be used in the two cables for the suspension bridge now being erected over the Delaware river between Philadelphia and Camden, N. J.

Shortridge To Seek Refunds To Taxpayers

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10.—Demand that the United State treasury take action in the California community property case was made today by Senator Shortridge, Republican of California.

After a conference with Attorney-General Stone, Shortridge declared that he would arrange a meeting with Secretary of the Treasurer Mellon in whose hands the community property case now rests.

Senator Shortridge said that he understood the attorney-general had ruled in favor of the taxpayers of California, thus entitling them to refunds of approximately $33,000,000 on taxes paid from 1918 to 1924.

NAVY BASE AT SINGAPORE OPPOSED

Proposed British Action Is Cause of Unfavorable Comment by Japs

TOKIO, Dec. 10.—Announcement that Great Britain intends to build a naval base at Singapore, in the Straits settlements, is causing considerable antagonistic comment throughout Japan, eclipsing even the intense feeling felt against the proposed American 1925 battle fleet maneuvers around Hawaii. The Japanese press is widely discussing the Singapore base, pointing out the possible threat it may hold against Japanese sovereignty in the Orient. Official quarters, however, decline to comment either on the Singapore project or the American fleet maneuvers.

Will Not Protest

In connection with the Singapore announcement the foreign office here denies that Japan intends to protest to Great Britain against the proposed base, though it is rumored that Hayashi, Japanese ambassador in London, has been instructed to make friendly representations to Great Britain outlining Japanese apprehensions against the British Far Eastern naval base project.

Observers here believe that if Britain proceeds with the Singapore base Japan will re-open the entire question of naval disarmament if another limitation conference is convened.

To mark the place where the last wolf in Sutherlandshire, Scotland, was killed about 225 years ago, the Duke of Portland has erected and inscribed a stone of Aberdeen granite at Lothberg.
